Fay fired, will finish year

by Arlene Surprenant

Before a stunned crowd of onlookers Bob Peterson, chairman of the Wilmington School Committee, read a brief statement announcing Supt. William Fay was leaving the school system December 31. The statement was read at the beginning of last Wednesday's school board meeting.

The board had been in negotiations with Fay to see if they could agree on a successor contract to Fay's current contract, which ends in December. Fay currently receives a base salary of $80,600 plus fringe benefits which include $290 a month life insurance, $200 a month expense allowance, and $100 a month car allowance. The benefits total $7,000. According to Committeeman Peggy Kane, the board was unanimous in its decision to eliminate the fringe benefits but was split on extending Fay's contract to 18 months.

"We were just trying to negotiate a fair contract in the best interest of the town," said Kane. At an earlier committee meeting, Fay had offered to give up his seven percent raise due him in January.

Contract negotiations came to a halt two weeks ago by mutual agreement, according to the statement read by Peterson. The issue was last discussed at an emergency executive session last Monday, two days before the board meeting.

After Wednesday's meeting, Fay and board members were close-mouthed about the entire matter.

"I have no comment at this time," Fay told the Town Crier.

After first saying he had no comment, Brad Jackson noted "this is a totally unanimous decision of this board." Others, like Dr. Shirley Callan, agreed. However, Callan told this paper that she was "the last to know" about the impending decision not to renew the contract. Both she and Kane had given the superintendent failing marks on a recent evaluation of his performance.

"I think this has been evolving. We mutually agreed this would be in the best interest of the school system," said Linda McMenimen.

"I, personally, feel it was in everybody's best interest. It really is nothing personal against him (Fay)," Peterson maintained. The chairman also confirmed what two sources had told this paper, that part of the decision stemmed from a recent trip Fay made to Florida to seek another position.

"I think Bill's done a good job. For example, he had a little bit of foresight with the business partnership," said John DeMarco adding, "It's been a hard time to be superintendent." DeMarco also noted that the vote against a renewal wasn't a vote of no confidence as much as an admission that the system may need a "fresh outlook" and "fresh ideas."

"I have no comment except I wish Bill well. I wouldn't want to jeopardize him getting another job at all," said Kane.

Phil Fenton said he was not prepared to comment on the situation.

The committee will begin the search for a new superintendent by immediately advertising in state newspapers and having a representative from the Massachusetts Association of School Committees meet with the board July 8 to help with the process. Kane said last week it was her preference to have an open process which would include input from the public and the creation of a screening committee to review the candidates. She felt the new superintendent should have curriculum experience and be "an experienced leader."

The buyout of the superintendent's contract had been a major issue with the departure of Wilmington's last superintendent Bob Horan. When asked if there could be a possible buyout this time, Peterson said "I think the general consensus would be no." He said, though Fay could leave the system earlier since he has a 120 day notice requirement in his contract, he felt that would be unlikely with $40,000 left in salary.

Kane put her reply in stronger terms.

"For myself, there will be no buyout, absolutely not," she said.

More than a pet

Laurie Conti and her companion dog Misty won the hearts of the concert audience on hand at Wilmington Common Monday night. Laurie gave an explanation of how a companion dog helps a person in a situation such as hers, and Misty gave a demonstration, picking up a dropped crutch and a set of keys for Laurie. They are involved with Canine Companions for Independence, which has four training facilities including one on Long Island. Laurie graduated cum laude from Merrimack College last year, with Misty at her side.

Fay surprised but not bitter

Supt. of Schools Bill Fay said that he is not bitter about his dismissal by the Wilmington School Committee, but that it did catch him by surprise. He said he was under the impression that the negotiations were leading toward a new contract.

He said the November vote of the committee not to roll over his old contract had not led him to believe that no new contract would be voted. Had he known then that he was to be terminated, he would have been busy sending out resumes for the past six months.

He did send out one resume, on the suggestion of former Supt. Walter Pierce. That job was as assistant superintendent of schools for personnel in West Palm Beach, Florida. When he was selected as one of 16 semi-finalists, he flew down for an interview.

Fay ended up as the second choice for the job. And who was hired? Walter Pierce.

Pierce left Wilmington 11 years ago after a tenure of about 15 years as superintendent. He has been working as personnel director in Sarasota.

Chairman issues statement on firing

The following is the prepared statement read by Chairman Bob Peterson at last week's meeting of the Wilmington School Committee:

"In November, 1991, the school committee voted not to roll over the superintendent's contract for an additional year. The school committee felt that it owed it to the citizens of Wilmington to review and discuss the contract in its entirety with the superintendent. As a result of that vote, members of the school committee have been meeting with Superintendent Fay about a possible successor contract. Last week the parties decided that it was in their mutual best interest to end those negotiations. The superintendent will leave Wilmington on December 31, 1992. The school committee wishes to take this opportunity to express its appreciation to Superintendent Fay for his valued service to the Wilmington Public Schools."

Town seeks $20k planning grant

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington officials are planning to apply for a $20,000 Strategic Planning Grant to look at the redevelopment potential of the Route 38 corridor, in particular the Sweetheart Plastics and Wilmington Ford sites.

In a letter dated June 24 and brought up before the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority (WRA) last week, Town Manager Michael Caira said a cash match of up to $10,000 is "critical" if the town is to be successful in obtaining the state grant from the Executive Office of Communities and Development. Caira requested that the authority put up the funds and participate in the planning aspect of the project.

At their meeting on Wednesday, members said they were interested in the proposal but they wanted more specific information, especially on how the money would be used. They also didn't want this project to detract from their current project to improve Rt.38 from Middlesex Avenue to Rt. 129 (Richmond Street).

Both Caira and Planning-Conservation Director Lynn Duncan maintained the proposal will complement the roadway plan. Duncan told this paper the money would allow the town to hire a consultant to look, especially, at reuse of the two larger sites and ways the town can intervene to increase the properties' marketability with possible rezoning or infrastructure support.

"I think there has to be help from the town to set reasonable goals and objectives for redevelopment," Duncan said. Caira added that, at present, the area in question is not being used to its best potential.

Duncan said it was probable a task force including officials, property owners, and other interested residents would be formed to review redevelopment potential if the town succeeds in obtaining the funds. However, warned Duncan, competition is expected to be keen with 351 towns and communities eligible and only 22 applications to be funded by the state.

The deadline for submitting the application is July 17. Duncan said, before the application is sent to EOCD, it has to be approved by the redevelopment authority, the planning board, and signed by the chairman of the board of selectmen. Duncan added she met Tuesday with representatives of the WRA to discuss the proposal, the scope of the grant, and how it would be administered. The issue is expected to come up at the authority's next meeting July 15.

Fourth activities underway

Wilmington's Fourth of July celebration began on Monday night with a good turout for a concert by John Penny. A hot day evolved into a pleasant evening, and the turnout was good for an early-in-the-week event.

While the celebration will run through Saturday night, the highlight of the week is on Friday night, July 3, with fireworks set for 9:30 p.m.

The Fourth of July Committee has adopted a slogan, "Bring a can to the Common," hoping that people will support the Wilmington Commissary, a food bank for local people who have fallen victim to the economy. Non-perishable food is being collected at the Fourth of July building all week long.

Tickets for meals are available at the Fourth of July building. Various local groups are serving dinner on the common every night. On Thursday night, the Knights of Columbus will serve roast beef. On Friday night, fireworks night, the Kiwanis Club will hold a chicken barbecue, rain or shine.

Saturday night, there is no organized dinner, but the Kiwanis Club will be selling hamburgers and hot dogs, and several other vendors will sell food as well. The sales are all by non-profit local groups.

Complete schedules for the events are available at the Fourth of July building, along with souvenir hats, t-shirts, sweats, etc.

Getting there

Because of the crowd expected for the Friday night fireworks, a system of shuttle buses will be in operation, carrying people from various parking lots to points near the common.

Bus No. 1 will begin at the Wildwood School, and stop at the Woburn Street School, the North Intermediate and the Whitefield, and will then drop off (and pick up later) at the library.

Bus No. 2 will ferry passengers from St. Dorothy's Church and the Town Hall to the Senior Citizens Center on School Street.

Bus No. 3 will pick up passengers at the Boutwell School, Deming Way, and the fire station, dropping them at the corner of Adams and Middlesex. Please note that anyone parking at the fire station should park away from the station to avoid blocking emergency vehicles.

Bus No. 4 will originate at the Shawsheen School, and stop at the town beach on Grove Avenue, dropping off passengers at the Senior Center.

Cars may also be parked at the Swain School, the Congregational Church, the old Town Hall, St. Thomas Church, the Methodist Church, and the back lot at the library (access from Wildwood St.) Please note that the Baptist Church parking lot will not be available, due to a church picnic.

Streets in the vicinity of the common have been posted for no parking, which will be towing enforced.

Historic district dedicated Friday

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington's historic Centre Village District will be dedicated on Friday, July 3, prior to the concert and fireworks display at the town common. The district was recognized by the National Park Service this spring and accepted into the National Register of Historic Places in May.

The district encompasses 110 acres of land along Middlesex Avenue and Church Street from the old town hall and Wildwood Cemetary to the high school and town common. Included in the district are 38 sites, public and privately owned buildings, and other resources.

"The presentation will be short and sweet," promised Carolyn Harris, chairman of the local historical commission which pushed to get the district recognized.

Harris will be presenting a certificate of recognition to Mark Haldane, chairman of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen at 7 p.m. Friday. The sign holding the name of the district is already in place in the small island of land at the end of the common. In honor of the special dedication ceremony, the sign will be decorated in red, white, and blue, said Harris.

"Obviously, we're really excited. Wilmington's an historic district now," she said.

School system adopts mainstreaming model

by Arlene Surprenant

A cooperative teaching model that mainstreams special education students into the regular classroom was a success, according to some of the 40 regular and special education teachers who participated in the pilot program last year. The Wilmington School System received a $13,000 grant last June to implement and evaluate the program in all local schools.

To assure continuance of the program, members of the Wilmington School Committee on Wednesday voted unanimously to adopt the model in the system next year. Committeemen agreed with an observation by fellow member Brad Jackson that mainstreaming helps tear down the walls between special and regular education youngsters.

To put the program into effect, a regular and a special education (SPED) teacher were assigned a mixed class of both special and regular education students. The teachers were all volunteers. The grant paid each teacher $20 an hour for planning and preparation activities which took place after the completion of their normal work day. An important component of the project was to evaluate the success of the program to see if the needs of both special and regular edducation students were met in this type of classroom and to see if the model would reduce the need for pull-out services, like the resource room, for SPED youngsters.

According to Special Education Director Cleo Fredette, all students seemed to profit from the program. Teachers in attendance at last week's committee meeting also praised the model and urged the committee to adopt it for the future.

"We got as much as the students out of it," said Sandy Arciero, who taught 24 youngsters along with Jean Burke at the Woburn Street School. Five of her students were SPED students who, she said, benefited from immediate assistance.

'We've seen great strides with the youngsters," said Judy Revelas, who worked with both Doug Anderson and Sue Smith at the West Intermediate School. The West had piloted the program a year earlier in the areas of reading and math. Revelas said five students in her class were able to move up to mid-level math and three SPED students no longer need special service.

Committeemen asked questions and praised both the model and the teachers for being part of the program.

"I am so impressed that you would give this time to the students," Peg Kane told the participants.

Linda McMenimen noted that the mainstreaming program allows SPED youngsters to spend more time in the classroom. She added there is also less disruption to classes since those students are not being pulled out of class to go to a resource room for special help.

July 21 court date for VFW commander

by Bill Conlon

A criminal complaint hearing has been set for July 21 in the Woburn District Court over an alleged civil rights violation at the Wilmington Veterans of Foreign Wars post on June 18.

According to witnesses, members of the Wildside BASS fishing club were ejected from the Wilmington VFW post by Commander Elmer Parker, supposedly because there was a black man in the group.

Witnesses said Parker used racial epithets while ordering the group out, saying that Wilmington was "a white man's VFW." The group left the hall quietly.

The complaint was taken by the Wilmington police, after listening to statements later that night from a few of the witnesses. On Tuesday, the Middlesex District Attorney's office notified Wilmington police that a criminal complaint hearing will be held, to determine if further legal action is justified.

Wilmington Police Chief Bobby Stewart said witnesses will likely be supoenaed for testimony, but said he was unsure how many of the 25 or so witnesses will be called.

Other people, who asked not to be named, have claimed similar racial incidents in the past at Wilmington VFW.

Wilmington daycare proposal to get second look

by Arlene Surprenant

A day care proposal put forth by the Wilmington Business/School Partnership last year may again come up for consideration by the local school committee.

In a six-to-one vote Wednesday, committeemen directed Supt. William Fay to re-investigate the day care plan and give it to the space needs sub-committee for review. Dr. Shirley Callan was the lone holdout. She said her primary responsibility is to students in kindergarten through twelfth grade and she still had problems with liability and space.

The issue was raised by three members of the Partnership during an update on their program.

"We care enough to give the effort. Please revisit the day care program we put forward last year," urged Jeanne Bumstead. She said, aside from the day care program, "everything we've done so far has been successful (and) we're extremely proud of that record."

The Partnership was formed three years ago to see if the many businesses in Wilmington would work hand in hand with the local school system to enhance the system and, at the same time, give something to the companies as well. Fay provided the impetus for the program.

Brad Jackson made the motion to take another look at day care. He said such a program would be a way to give something back to businesses which have given so much to the school system in the form of donations and other support. John DeMarco added, as long as the program wouldn't cost the schools money, it was worth examining. The day care component, as outlined, is intended to be self-sufficient and any deficit would reportedly be made up by participating businesses.

Local businesses had asked the board to consider a day care program primarily to benefit their employees and their children. Nancy Bodenstein of the Partnership maintained that recent data seems to show that students with an early childhood education are apt to stay in school and graduate. The board went along with the motion.

During the discussion with Bumstead, Bodenstein, and Richard Palleschi, committeemen were also encouraged to get involved with the Partnership.

"We need to do this together," explained Bumstead.

Bodenstein told the board, after three years, the Partnership is seeking to expand and reach beyond the business community to include the school committee, teachers, parents, and students. Palleschi explained the Partnership this year restructured internally to become more efficient and have more accountability. Frank Sullivan of Screenprint Dow was chosen chairman and sub-committees covering the different aspects of the Partnership were formed. In addition, the Partnership contributed over $4,000 in mini grants to deserving teachers, $2,200 in scholarship aid to several seniors, and made numerous donations of equipment and other needed materials to the system.

Bumstead assured the committee the business community was also trying to find some way to pay the salary of Partnership Coordinator Al Fesseneden next year. Because of budget constraints, the committee chose not to fund Fessenden's position next year.

It's YOUR Money

WHAT DO YOU NEED FOR RETIREMENT?
Question: What will you need to live in comfort when you retire? Answer: more than you thought.
A recent study by researchers at Georgia State University indicate that you'd need 75 to 80 percent of pre-retirement income - a lot more than the 40 to 60 percent advised years ago - to maintain your standard of living. One reason may be Social Security benefits are partially taxed today; another, that retirees often give away assets.
Where does the money go? Comparing spending patterns of pre-and post-retirement people in the same earnings bracket, the study found that retirees spend up to $1,000 more a year on health care. Expenses for housing, food and education go down at retirement, but workers who earned $30,000 or less will spend more on transportation and entertainment than they did before. Those who earned more than $70,000 will spend more on gifts. And all retirees spend more to maintain their homes, to hire help for chores and replace old appliances.
Have you funded your retirement? We can show you how at

Republican candidates speak in Wilmington

With the courts and the Legislature still wrangling over how the Congressional districts will look, Wilmington Republicans hosted a candidates night last Tuesday. With Wilmington split between two districts, candidates were present from the Seventh and the Sixth Congressional districts.

It was quite possible that, before the national election Wilmington will have but one candidate. The U.S. Supreme Court issued a decision on Friday which reduced the Bay State congessional delegation to ten. This negates the plan which had split Wilmington, but leaves the state with no plan.

The event was held on June 23 at the Royal Dynasty Restaurant and was hosted by the Wilmington Republican Town Committee, Ted Tripp, chairman.

Frank Vallarelli of Stoneham and Peter Torkildsen of Danvers are each running for Congress.

Vallarelli is running in the Seventh, where the incumbent is Democrat Ed Markey. Torkildsen is running in the Sixth, currently represented by Nick Mavroules.

Vallarelli spoke to say he is not a professional politician. He is in labor, a small businessman, not an attorney nor a wealthy person.

Vallarelli wants a Congress with new faces and new ideas. He wants to see a balanced budget, and to see a president with the power of a Line Item Veto. That power, he said, is held by the governors of 43 states.

Congressman Markey he said, has virtually ignored the suburbs. He has not even had an office in the district for eight years. Ninety-eight percent of the money he has raised as a candidate has been from outside the district.

"Question: Why has not Congress balanced the budget?"

"Question: How do we get where we want to go?"

Answer: Cut the Congressional Staff. There are hundreds of sub committees. Dismantle the Social Welfare State."

"There is no easy answer to health care costs."

Torkildsen spoke as a candidate who might be running in the eastern half of Wilmington. A past candidate for lieutenant governor, he has recently served as commissioner of Labor and Industry. He resigned that post to run for Congress.

Torkildsen grew up in Danvers, in a family of 10 persons. He is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts.

Torkildsen told the audience that he lives in an area which has four times as many Democrats as Republicans - in Danvers and in Peabody.

Peter Torkildsen

"But I did win! - In Danvers and in Peabody! And in 1990, when I ran for lieutenant governor, in the district I represent, I collected 61 percent of the vote!"

"In 14 months in the office (Labor and Industries) with new management, I reduced the backlog. Then in April I resigned, because I was running for Congress!"

Frank Vallarelli

"Small businesses are the backbone of our economy" he told his audience. I favor the return of tax credit and the capital gains tax."

"I favor the reduction of federal government borrowing. I favor six terms, in the House of Representatives! I want elections for a limited period of time, and then new help, in Congress!"

"Members of Congress are exempt from paying Social Security tax! They should abide by the same rules as everyone else!"

"I do not favor the Democratic proposal to take over hospitals! That would be a disaster!"

State Rep. Marianne Brenton, of Burlington, represents that town, Bedford and Precinct 3 in Wilmington, on Beacon Hill.

In the state legislature Marianne does not like the "wheeling and dealing. There is too much power among the Democrats."

I am going in for another round!" she declared.

"You cannot believe how one sided this state government is — until you get up on that hill!"

Marianne told of the 27 hours which the House recently spent, on the budget. She didn't miss a vote.

Her description of the vote by the Democrats was "like a feeding frenzy! Like a piranha!"

Marianne spoke of Senator Bob Buell, who represents Wilmington.

"Governor Bill Weld needs him! The Democrats are trying to cut off Bill Weld, but he is making progress!"

"It is terrible," she said, describing the new heavy tax on jobs in Massachusetts, — small business. She described it as a 64 percent increase in taxes, suddenly, in July.

"Seventy-five percent of the jobs in Massachusetts come from small business."

Marianne Brenton

"I am going to keep on trying! I get bi-partisan support.

"I would like two or three terms in the legislature, to make my contribution. After that I may leave."

Vince Dixon of Cambridge is a candidate for Sheriff of Middlesex County. A B.A. degree with honors from Harvard University Extension, he has a Master of Education from the Harvard Graduate School of Education.

The Sheriff of Middlesex County, the chief law enforcement officer of the county is an elected executive with a six year term. There is a $20 million budget, a staff of over 400 and a total of nearly 1,000 prisoners. Some are awaiting trial, and others have been sentenced for terms up to two and a half years in the Billerica House of Correction.

"Fairness and firmness" means that those serving time must understand why they are there; but be given direct incentives to shape up their lives. Literacy training and real job skill training, combined with sound, cost effective management. Care and custody of prisoners must relate to prevention, and the broader requirements of responsible living by all members of society.

The sheriff can make a difference to your daily life, he said.

New law protects public parks

Rep. James R. Miceli and the legislature have passed a new law aimed at preventing vandalism and degradation of Massachusetts public parks. The new law makes defacing a public park punishable by a fine of up to $1,000. The previous law imposed a maximum fine of $100 per offense. Hopefully the increased penalty will curb offenders activities and help preserve our natural sanctuaries. The implementation of this law also continues the Legislature's trend to diminish the crimes against society.

.....Opinion.....

frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

It's the Fourth of July.

In between tasty hot dogs, hamburgers and sweet corn-on-the-cob, a thought or two may be given liberties, justice and individual freedoms. We have "certain inalienable rights," unless...we are Black and attend the local Veterans of Foreign Wars clubhouse on Main Street.

There, one veteran has admitted to forgetting what he ever may have fought for and what his group, more than any of us, should clearly recognize — that all men are created equal and that this pre-eminent conviction has been worth dying for.

Commander Elmer "Fudgy" Parker has always been great for local entertainment purposes. A frequent candidate for public office garnering one to two hundred votes here and there, Parker is reminiscent of the hobo character from television movies. You kind of wince a little at "Fudgy," as the Townies love to call him, but realize that he's basically harmless and just another part of the particular character and "charm" of small town America.

Commander Parker is no longer "charming," entertaining or harmless. This town has tolerated "Fudgy" as a funny aberration, but he's not funny anymore. He's a local veteran's commander who shouted racial expletives and basically gave a live demonstration of a scene right out of Roots. If his crime isn't ignorance it's a heinous disregard for what is decent behavior, and on this patriotic holiday, I would dare say what is American.

The local Veterans of Foreign Wars are decent. They are patriotic. What they have fought for is dishonored by the actions of Parker, who represents their opposite values. They deserve better leadership and representation than that afforded by a hateful bigot.

Elmer "Fudgy" Parker should resign his post as commander. Better yet, the post membership should afford the public with a clear message by promptly impeaching Parker and stripping him of membership.

Each year Wilmington taxpayers contribute $750.00 to the operation of the VFW Hall, where a Black man was not welcome. The Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, Mark Haldane, said he will propose that this sum be withheld pending the conclusion of the police investigation.

Any public contributions should be withheld until Parker is gone. Taxpayers in Wilmington are not hypocritical. They know what they are celebrating at Fun on the Fourth this week and it all goes against the intolerance and prejudice espoused by the VFW commander.

Briefly in Politics

A Supreme Court ruling issued Friday reduced Massachusetts to 10 seats in Congress, which means a new redistricting map could place Tewksbury in a new Merrimack Valley District, long the crusade of many Greater Lowell politicians, and may keep Wilmington whole in the Seventh.

Republicans on Beacon Hill are promoting a new Valley district running as far south as Tewksbury, and possibly as far west as Gardner. The hub of the district would naturally be Lowell.

"I've spoken with the Governor and he is committed to the creation of a Merrimack Valley District and is going to stick to his guns on this issue," said Rep. Rob Krekorian. But State Sen. Bob Buell said fierce negotiating by Democrats may kill a Merrimack Valley plan and keep both Wilmington and Tewksbury in the Seventh District.

Ironically, after months of uncertainty as to the Bay State congressional map, lawmakers predicted this week that the final redistricting may be completed in record time, just days after the Supreme Court ruling was handed would have kept all of Tewksbury in Markey's district.

The back room deal-making between Republican and Democratic leaders is classic politics which has candidates careers hanging in the balance. Mike Conway, a Republican challenging incumbent Chester Atkins, said "it's like watching two peacocks in a pre-mating ritual dance . . . a pick here and a pick there."

A Town Crier riddle:

What has four legs, chases dogs, and is impossible to find in Tewksbury after 3:30 p.m.?

Answer: A dog officer. (We lied about the extra two legs.)

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I am the grieving mother of the 21-year-old you spoke of in your editorial.

I want to thank you for your compassion and your tenderness. I wish I could have brought my son home from the hospital, but unfortunately I wasn't that lucky.

It has been a very long two years and the hardest two years that my family and I have had to try to live through.

Without my family and all my son's friends (many of them) I could not have made it this far. They have given us such love and support.

Kids are Beautiful People; they give you the inner strength you did not know you had. One girl in particular has been so much support to me. She is a very special person.

People have said to me "how do you go on? I never could." The only way I can describe it is with that ever present pain in your heart that never leaves you is, you go to bed at night, wake up in the morning (if you sleep at all). Many nights a family member sat up with me as we talked and cried together. Even though he was suffering his own pain, he sat and listened to me, his strength helping me through the night and when daylight came, we would think, damn, another day to hurt, to cry at a picture, a song, or just a memory. The missing is everything, the laughter, the joy of hearing his voice, the kiss goodnight with the "I love you Mom."

God has no age limit on when he wants you. Whether it's an accident or an illness that takes your child, the pain is just so strong it just isn't suppose to happen! If nothing else, our losing our son, makes another kid stop and think and say I can't put my family through this.

Family things will go on, happy things that my son should be here for. I believe he will be, if not in body, definitely in spirit. He is and always will be with us. The hardest part is not being able to see and touch him. My son will always be there with all of us in our hearts and in our minds; the missing is so ever present.

It is the disbelief that this horrible thing could happen to your child when prayers and love cannot keep him safe from another driver that makes you question your faith. But without faith and believing there is a better place, you definitely would go nuts.

I miss my son and always will. I think of all the happy times and the good memories he has given me and that helps me go through another day. He is and always be a special person to me. I love him so.

So Larz, when you go down to the cemetery to visit your family, stop and say hello; I'll be there.

A grieving mother

Dear Larz:

After attending the Tewksbury Selectmen's meeting on June 23, 1992, there is no question in our minds, or the minds of the senior citizens that Susan Sullivan will still help out the seniors: appointed or not. She will be there for them no matter what. She is all heart and all for the Council on Aging. As a senior citizen stated: "she needs to be appointed to have some power to accomplish things for the seniors." To see what Susan has accomplished, all someone would have to do is pick up the Tewksbury Advertiser, any week, look at the Council on Aging section, and they could find out enough about Susan Sullivan and the senior citizens to write a complete novel.

Susan has devoted many hours to the seniors and after seeing their disappointment to Susan not being reappointed, why don't the selectmen give the seniors who they want. That person being Susan Sullivan (the best choice for them). Give them their choice. They are the ones who matter, because their time here is precious and Susan Sullivan is helping them make the most of that time. Like the signs at the meeting stated: "Support those who support the Council on Aging."

The July 6, 1967 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

The paper's typesetting machine broke down on Friday and due to the holiday was not repaired until Tuesday. The publisher apologized for the "eight pages only" and promised more for the following week.

Richard Denault of Glendale Circle graduated from Wentworth Institute on June 17.

According to Nosey Nancy, Al Marfleet had been appointed chairman of the Public Safety Committee.

Fielding's Farm on Hopkins Street was offering to rent their ponies by the ride, hour or day. "Use our ponies for your occasion."

Elia's Market advertised 48 Red Rose tea bags for 49 cents; Hood Riviera ice cream, half gallons, 59 cents each or two for a dollar; chicken quarters, three pounds, $1.

Lucci's offered boneless pot roast at 68 cents a pound; Colonial frankforts, 59 cents a pound and a steak sale, top round, cube or blade, 98 cents a pound.

The June 30,1982 edition of the Town Crier of Tewksbury noted that:

In order to keep spending within the 2 1/2 budget, Tewksbury selectmen proposed to cut: teacher raises; no new equipment; trim rubbish proposal pickup and seek alternative funding; cut funds for five unfilled police positions; eliminate 13 departments not required by law; cut funds for repaving Whipple Road; cut funds for Pike Street drainage work; deduct water related costs from DPW budget and fund on the new water rate.

To date the town had spent about a million dollars in a search for potable water. The latest study which carried a recommendation to build a treatment plant received favorable action in 1981 but that action was rescinded during the feisty town meeting of June 21. A meeting after which one resident declared that Tewksbury would need "no fireworks"for the Fourth of July — there was enough in that meeting to keep the town supplied for some time.

A picture showed the five generations of Daniel Sinclair, Jr.'s family of Colonial Drive and School Street, made possible after his recent arrival.

Kathy Gagnon of South Street was a patient at Winchester Hospital where she had undergone surgery.

Dewing School Principal John Weir was pictured receiving a kiss from kindergarten graduate Jennifer Durgin during graduation exercises.

Lisa and Donna Gath were pictured as Tewksbury's baton twirling experts. They had recently won several competitions including Lisa's "Miss Majorette" an honor won in Springfield and Donna's two trophies including that of Pre-Teen Queen at the Northeast Open.

Bill Cahill won a gold medal in the 400 meter run while taking a silver in the 50 meter and a bronze in the softball throw when he and seven other handicapped athletes combined to capture 17 medals in the state Special Olympics held at BU's Nickerson Field.

Hughes stakes claim to peas picked June 15

Frank Hughes of 1 Royal St. North Wilmington reports that he picked his peas on June 15. That date is well ahead of that on which Barbara Poloian picked hers.

Thus the Town Crier Golden Pea Spoon Award will probably go to Mr. Hughes, unless someone is able to establish an earlier claim.

Backyard gardeners pride themselves on having fresh peas on Bunker Hill Day (June 17). We have a very unusual spring this year, with yo-yo temperatures. This puts all vegetables under stress, but especially peas. They love the cool days, and nights but temperatures over 80 degrees are intolerable.

Because of this Hughes mulches the peas beginning in May, with a couple of inches of redwood or hemlock mulch. In June with the higher day temperatures, he increases the insulating mulch to five or six inches. Peas love cool roots, and they don't require water as often. Hughes points to Hugh Wiberg's advice in his Backyard Gardening Column. "Please be reminded that pea plants are very heat intolerant.

Hughes practice mulching his vegetables and flowers with hemlock as soon as the ground warms up the first week in June. In between the plants, he uses grass clippings to keep the weeds down and to conserve water.

Frank is a school teacher and teaches art at North Reading High School. When his students and fellow teachers ask him what he is going to do this summer, Frank says "I'm going to relax and enjoy myself by working in my garden with my flowers, vegetables, fruit trees and grape vines. I grow a lot of my flowers and vegetables from seed indoors, beginning in February. Some flowers have to be started eight to 12 weeks before transplanting into the garden. It takes me two days to cut the grass, I guess I could push myself to do it in one, but then I couldn't stop to smell the roses or watch my peas growing."

backyard gardening

by Hugh Wiberg

Plant diseases are more troublesome for the gardener than insect pests because we cannot really see them. Diseases are the invisible enemies of our flowers, ornamentals and vegetables. They sneak up and take hold of a plant and, as often as not in the case of viral and bacterial diseases, once a plant falls ill, a lingering death usually follows. Yet there are measures to control diseases, and preventative maintenance is the order of the day. Although good sanitation practices and careful cleanup go a long way toward controlling diseases, I have found that a single product, Ortho's Daconyl, used before the disease takes hold, has helped me immeasurably. How does one know that a disease is about to "take hold?" you may ask. I have observed that most wilts, viruses, and bacterial diseases tend to occur in our yards on the same kinds of plants year after year and at about the same time.

With tomatoes in this area, the most common diseases are anthracnose, bacterial wilt, blossom end rot, early blight, fusarium wilt and verticillium wilt. If your tomato plants have suffered from some unidentified disease, the problem is almost certain to be one of these. Your best bet to pinpoint the specific disease is to visit your garden center and leaf through their Ortho Problem Solver Book. Pinewood and Mahoney's among others, have this helpful reference, complete with good quality color photographs.

Daconyl, introduced by Ortho four or five years ago, is, in this gardener's judgment, the best all purpose fungicide available today. Where copper and sulfur compounds served our grandparents fairly well 50 years ago, Daconyl, active ingredient chlorothalonil, is the state of the art disease control product of the 90's. It must be noted though, that this agent, and any of the other fungicides, will not cure your plant of diseases. It's function is primarily early preventative. Daconyl should be used before you see evidence of a disease on a plant, and early July is the right time to begin applications, using a compressed air pump sprayer.

What prompts this dissertation on diseases was a call from M. R. in Wilmington late last week. Mrs. R. has had the same problem with her hollyhocks and lilacs for several years. By the middle of July these ornamentals begin to show a white to pearly gray mold-like substance on their leaves. The plants begin to lag and new growth appears dwarfed and misshapen. Without much question the problem here is powdery mildew, which overwinters in plant debris and can be wind borne from other yards in the neighborhood. Powdery mildew usually appears the third and fourth week in July so now is the time to apply a fungicide. The container provides complete instructions on how and when to apply. The standard mix is one tablespoon of Daconyl to a gallon of water.

If you already see signs of disease on any of your plants, make your first application of fungicide this weekend. Don't expect miracles; the problem probably will not disappear entirely. Weekly applications should halt further incursions and significantly slow the rate of plant deterioration.

A couple of reminders: for gardeners who got off to a late start this year, it is not too late to plant anything (except peas) from seed. Early July is the very best time to plant green and lima bean seeds, since the soil is thoroughly warm and the seeds will sprout quickly.

Water your garden in the morning is possible. Evening watering during the heat of summer encourages the spread of diseases, since the plants do not dry out thoroughly until midmorning of the next day. Heat and moisture are the conditions which encourage plant diseases.

Stay ahead of the weeds with the liberal use of mulches, or hand pull or hoe for a half hour every weekend. If you let the weeds get ahead of you, you'll be tempted to abandon your garden by mid-August.

Have a happy 4th!!

Automotive students cop second place

Students in the Automotive Department at Shawsheen Tech captured a second place finish in the statewide Chrysler AAA Trouble-shooting Contest last month.

Competition began in March, when eight person teams from 38 schools took a written test of automotive knowledge, vying for spots in the finals, which was a one and a half hour hands on repair contest, held in Boston's City Hall Plaza in May.

Shawsheen came in second in the written test; the two person team of Mark Bugley of Tewksbury and Scott Andrews of Billerica took second place in Boston, for a second place overall finish for Shawsheen. Each team of finalists was given a repair order for an identically "bugged" Chrysler Caravan, and had an hour and a half to correct all problems, start the car, and take it in for judging.

"They announced the winners from last to first and after the first few announcements, we thought we had been forgotten," Shea said.

"When they got down to the top three and we still hadn't heard our name, then it dawned on me that what counts most is having a perfectly repaired car. Time, as long as it is within the limit, is secondary. We had a perfect car." The students and teacher received jackets for their win and the school was given a trophy.

Both graduating seniors, Bugley has a job with a local company as an alignment technician; Andrews will further his education and experience in vehicle repair as an enlisted US Marine.

To practice for the contest, students used a van from a local dealer. "We appreciate the generosity of Fred F. Cain of Wilmington in allowing us to use the new Plymouth Voyager for study and preparation," said Shea, who also expressed appreciation for a donation of tools for the contest from Sears in Burlington.

Tim McIver of Billerica also qualified on the written test, but illness prevented him from competing in the hands on portion.

Shea said he wasn't surprised that his students did well, and he expected a good performance next year. "They were the best of the best - and we have more," he said.

From left: Scott Andrews, Mark Bugley and instructor Dan Shea sport new jackets and hats, awarded in recognition of the second place standing of the Shawsheen students in a statewide automotive troubleshooting contest.

WRA and officials meet on road plan

Michael Matt, executive director of the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority, reported at last Wednesday's board meeting that he will be meeting with town department heads on plans to improve Rt. 38 from Middlesex Avenue to Rt. 129. The task force of Matt and officials hope to clear up any problems prior to moving ahead with the improvement project. The plan will go back to Wilmington selectmen when those involved have given input and agreed on the best way to proceed.

During the meeting, the board also underwent its annual reorganization. The following were elected new officers for this year: Vaughn Surprenant, chairman; Charles Gilbert, vice-chairman; Dennis Volpe, secretary; Sidney Kaizer, treasurer; and Pat Duggan, assistant treasurer.

I wouldn't be sitting here talking about my doctor if he hadn't performed remarkably. In fact, I wouldn't be sitting here at all.

Susan Callahan is thankful to be alive.

Bleeding from the throat, she and her husband feared the worst when she arrived at the New England Memorial Hospital Emergency Room. But within 1½ hours, Susan went from being at death's door to being a very lucky, stabilized patient.

Dr. José Marcal performed an emergency endoscopic procedure that enabled him not only to diagnose a burst blood vessel but, remarkably, to treat the life-threatening condition right in the emergency room. Dr. Marcal's quick response, and his ability to perform this advanced procedure, not only saved Susan from surgery; it saved her, period.

New England Memorial Hospital is on the forefront of endoscopic diagnosis and treatment. Susan Callahan gratefully acknowledges that without Dr. Marcal, without the quick attention in the emergency room, and without a technological breakthrough like endoscopy, she wouldn't have a story to tell. Especially one with a happy ending.

Being a dealer for a major manufacturer can be more fun than one might think. Sandy Ford is a John Deere dealer. He sells and lawn tractors, lawn mowers and the necessary accessories and fun. It's a family business, his wife Aurora and four children (ages 12, 9, 6 and 5) all have a part in it. The children love to wash and park the riding tractors outside for display. The tractor that "needs" the most driving always seems to go first.

Sandy has been amazed a few times by the company that backs him. A few weeks ago a customer came in looking for a part for a 25 year old Deere. Sandy looked it up and "By gosh – it was there!" "We had it shipped in overnight and the machine was running the next day!" When he asked if it was time for a new machine the customer replied, "Nope, it's still workin' fine."

"It's the service," Sandy says. "Making people happy about owning a John Deere." All the products from John Deere carry a 2 year warranty and Sandy insisted on a 2 year warranty from every manufacturer of the side line items he carries. The gas powered line trimmer, the chipper, or any other machine is covered for 2 years! He also boasts of the 30 day money back policy. If you're not satisfied with your John Deere, bring it back for a refund or replacement. No hassle.

Just for fun they carry toys. Model tractors and trucks and all. Some your kids can ride and some that need a push and some you won't let them touch. John Deere makes a "Precision Classics" line of detailed antique replicas which sell for $150.00 new. Collectors snatch them up fast. The only one Sandy has in stock right now is a 1936 Model A John Deere with a six row harrow attached.

Riding a Deere are (l to r) Aurora Ford, Sandy Ford (standing), chief mechanic Rodel Olvido and mechanic Dan Robbins.

You've heard the ads on TV and radio about "Deere Season." Well, that's over now and it's time for service on your Deere. Free pick-up and delivery in Tewksbury and Wilmington makes it easy to keep your Deere in top shape. Call for prompt courteous service: (508) 694-9920

RE/MAX Casalot, 11 Middlesex Ave, Wilmington 658-8100

Seated at the front desk of her new office, Donna invites you to call or drop by to say hello

"It's getting better every year!" In these times not many business people say those words, but that's what Donna Wayman says. With over 130 properties sold during the year, 1991 was her best year ever. 1990 was the best year ever. So was 1989. A trend is developing here. With 39 properties sold in the first quarter of 1992 Donna feels she is right on track for another "best year ever."

Donna is a Wilmington resident with many distinctions. She is a licensed builder! She is a successful business owner. A licensed broker. The first woman to join Wilmington Rotary Club. But the most telling distinction is the people Donna does business with. Repeat business and referrals are the majority of her clients. People who work with Donna respect her enough to recommend her to their friends and family!

It's truly a home grown success story. Donna started working at Casalot Real Estate even before she graduated from Wilmington High School. In 1985 she bought the company! She joined RE/MAX in May of 1990 and was inducted into the RE/MAX 100% Club in 1991.

RE/MAX Casalot also deals with a great deal of new construction. They have 5 developments under way in Wilmington and Billerica.

Recently Donna expanded her offices to 11 Middlesex Ave in Heritage Commons. She and the eight associates, office manager and secretary are excited about the prospects the move has made. Their large staff allows them to serve their customers better with longer office hours than many other offices. They are open 7 days a week. Monday thru Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. Saturday and Sunday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Rev. Chapman has new calling

by Meredith Lawrie

The Rev. Mrs. Tansy Chapman has witnessed a lot of change since her arrival at St. Elizabeth's Chapel in Wilmington ten years ago. But last Sunday morning she said her last service before a congregation of over 100 people — a vast increase from the eight initial members in attendance when Chapman first arrived at the chapel.

In the midst of a "sorrowful yet joyful" decision to leave the diocese and become a licensed social worker and spiritual director in Arlington, Mrs. Chapman, who has also acted as the chapel's vicar, leaves behind a legacy of love and guidance to the growing congregation.

"Just as I felt drawn to the seminary, I feel a calling to do this," she explained.

Originally from Hampshire, England, she was religiously influenced by her grandfather, who was an Anglican priest.

After she was trained to be a medical social worker at The Institute of London, Mrs. Chapman came to the United States in 1964 and worked at Mass General Hospital.

Her decision to become a priest was not possible until 1976, when the Episcopal Church accepted women as priests.

Being a female priest, initially was the hardest part about coming to St. Elizabeth's in 1982.

"I felt a little awkward at first," she said. "Some people called me Father."

Mrs. Chapman said the small congregation was quick to warm up to her, however, and slowly began to grow in number. What was supposed to be a part-time position, was turning out to be more than simply a job.

The chapel itself, a modest white building with welcoming red doors, possesses a rich history. Established in 1929 as the Forest Street Second Congregational Church, has only recently been part of the Episcopal Church. In 1980, the church was named a mission chapel of St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Burlington and later named a mission chapel of the Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts.

When Mrs. Chapman, who was formerly the Assistant Priest at St. Mark's, arrived at the new chapel, she hoped it would attract Episcopalians from surrounding towns, such as Tewksbury and Billerica, where there weren't any

Rev. Tansy Chapman

Episcopal Churches.

The anticipated growth did come to the chapel, as people traveled from as far as Everett and Welsley to the church.

As a result, there have been several additions added on to the building since Mrs. Chapman has been there, including a Sunday School section located at the base of the church, which currently has 75 children enrolled.

Chapman doesn't see this growth stemming merely from the convenience factor, however.

She described the growing congregation as being able to "flourish in a time when attendance in most others of the same kind is dwindling, because of the empowerment of the non-clergy the congregation believes in."

She expressed that there was nothing wrong with the hierarchal system, but that the approach didn't work for them.

What did work was prayer, bible study, and outreach.

"It was wonderful seeing people's lives change by growing in their faith," she said. "A ministry was brought out in everyone, be it music or outreach. This church has really become a church of the people."

It's for that reason she believes the chapel will continue to flourish after she has left.

Mrs. Bunny Frey, Chairperson of Outreach at St. Elizabeth's agrees with Chapman.

"Because she has taught us to be organized and to take care of ourselves as a congregation, we've become strong enough to go on," she said adding that it will also be heart wrenching to lose her as vicar and Reverend.

"We have to recognize that she's been called, as hard as it is to see her go," Frey said.

The basement of St. Elizabeth's, where Mrs. Chapman's office is located, now lacking most of her belongings she brightened the area with, still shows signs of the close-knit parish, who have shared cookouts, fairs, weddings and funerals together. Children's drawings hang on the wall reminding the congregation to help the orphans in Honduras. They perhaps serve as a sign that the congregation's cause will continue on now that they have become the strong organization they are today.

The Rev. Mrs. Chapman will continue her work in the priesthood after she leaves St. Elizabeth's. Her work will enable her to remain in her current residence in Reading with her husband and three children. She hopes to write a book one day on her exceptional experience as a parish missionary in Wilmington, and on her experience being involved in "creating a church."

As she prepares to leave, Mrs. Chapman vacuums the red rose petals which had fallen from the bouquets the congregation had given her, as part of the celebration they threw for her on her last Sunday at St. Elizabeth's.

"I'm trying not to view this as a sad occasion," she said, adding that she also didn't want to leave the place a mess for her former congregation.

John Leo Markey

John "Leo" Markey, 72, of Wilmington died June 25, 1992 at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston.

Born in Boston, he was the son of the late Patrick F. and Margaret A. (Lowney) Markey and lived in Wilmington most of his life.

He served in the U.S. Army during World War II and was a Wilmington police officer for 34 years prior to retirement.

He is survived by his beloved wife Norinne M. (Joyce) Markey; and his children, John L. Jr., of Plaistow, N.H., Margaret A. Lewis of No. Reading and Mary M. Levey of Rochester, N.Y. He is also survived by five grandchildren.

His funeral was held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home on Monday with a funeral mass at St. Dorothy's Church. A Wilmington police honor guard served as pallbearers.

Memorials in his name may be made to the American Heart Association, 33 Fourth AVe., Needham Heights, MA 02194.

Kenneth L. Meegan

Kenneth L. Meegan, of Wilmington, son of Alfred N. Sr. and Louise (Pineau) Meegan died Friday evening June 26, 1992 at his residence.

Born in Rome, N.Y., Ken lived in Wilmington most of his life and in 1980 graduated from Shawsheen Tech. He was employed as a chef for the Four Seasons Hotel in Boston.

He was a member of Alanon in the Boston area, volunteer Aids Action Committee in Boston Living Center and Boston Friday Night Supper Program.

Aside from his parents, Ken is survived by his brothers William, Alfred N. Jr., both of Wilmington, Steven of Dracut and David of Burlington, and his sister Laura Meegan also of Wilmington. He is also survived by several nieces and nephews.

His funeral was held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, Tuesday morning at 9 followed by a funeral mass at St. Dorothy's Church. Interment took place in the family lot, Wildwood Cemetery.

Memorials in his name may be made to the Friday Night Supper Program, in care of Jan Brassil, 351 Boylston St., Boston, MA 02116.

Recyclers meet

On the evening of June 18, members of recycling committees from five area towns (Tewksbury, Billerica, Burlington, Carlisle and Woburn) met together for the first time at the old Bennett Library in Billerica. Fourteen towns had been invited by the Billerica Recycling Committee which hosted the event.

The purpose of the meeting was to give the recycling groups an opportunity to come together and exchange ideas so that each individual group isn't operating alone and reinventing the wheel in their own locality. Each town present outlined the history and operation of its respective recycling program. Goals and problems were discussed.

The meeting was so worthwhile that it was agreed to meet on a quarterly basis at the same location in Billerica. The next regional meeting of the recycling groups will be held September 17 with the hope that additional area towns will attend.

The family of Leo Markey would like to express their sincere appreciation for all the kind words, actions, respect and support shown by the Police Department, friends, relatives and community which helped us through this difficult time.

RICHARD P. QUINCY, as general partner of Silver Leaf Limited Partnership Plaintiff

v.

ROBERT FOWLER, CHERYL BUSCH, RICHARD KRAUSE, and BRAIN O'CONNOR, as They Are Members of the Planning Board of Tewksbury, and TOWN OF TEWKSBURY

Defendants

TO: The parties in interest (abutters and abutters to abutters within 300 feet) concerning a certain parcel of land on Main Street (Marshall's Plaza), in Tewksbury, Middlesex County, Massachusetts;

You are hereby notified that a complaint has been filed by the above-named Richard P. Quincy, as general partner of Silver Leaf Limited Partnership, concerning a proposal to construct a shopping center called Heath Brook Plaza on the above-referenced lot, as to which you are a party in interest within the meaning of the Zoning Act, Mass. G.L. c. 40A. This complaint concerns:

An action pursuant to Mass. G.L. c. 40A, § 17, Mass. G.L. c. 231A; and 42 U.S.C. § 1983 arising out of a February 7, 1992 decision of the Tewksbury Planning Board denying site plan approval for Heath Brook Plaza, a shopping center proposed by the Plaintiff. The Planning Board had previously approved the Plaintiff's proposed project, subject to restrictive conditions, pursuant to site plan special permit provisions of the Tewksbury Zoning Bylaw. The Plaintiff appealed the previous conditional approval to the Land Court, which issued a summary judgment decision annulling the restrictive conditions and declaring that the site plan special permit provisions of the Tewksbury Zoning Bylaw could not be applied to the Plaintiff's proposed use, which is permitted as of right under the Zoning Bylaw. Quincy V. Sullivan, et al., Land Court Misc. No. 149363 (August 5, 1991) (Cauchon, J.). Despite the Land Court's ruling, the Planning Board on remand denied the Plaintiff site plan approval.

The Plaintiff requests the Court to annul the Planning Board's denial of site plan approval; grant site plan approval for the Plaintiff's proposed project; issue a declaratory judgment declaring that the Planning Board acted in excess of its authority in denying site plan approval; determine and award compensatory damages against the Town of Tewksbury based on the Planning Board's actions; and award the Plaintiff his costs and attorneys fees.

The complaint and subsequent pleadings in this matter may be examined at the Land Court, Boston, Massachusetts, or a copy of the complaint may be obtained from Plaintiff's attorney, Eric W. Wodlinger, Esq., Choate, Hall & Stewart, Exchange Place, 53 State Street, Boston, MA 02109

If you intend to intervene as a party in this action, you are hereby required to serve upon Plaintiff's attorney a motion to intervene and an answer to the complaint within twenty-one (21) days of the date of publication, and a copy thereof must be filed in this Court on or before said day.

If you fail to do so, the Court will not allow you to intervene thereafter and may adjudicate the matter in your absence.

It is ORDERED that notice be given by publishing a copy of this order one time in the Town Crier, a newspaper published in Middlesex County, and by mailing a copy of this order by U.S. certified mail, postage pre-paid, to the parties in interest as their addresses appear on the records of the Board of Assessors of the Town of Tewksbury, no later than July 17, 1992.

Witness, JOHN E. FENTON, JR., Chief Justice of the Land Court, this 23rd day of June, 1992.

Patten library summer programs

Tewksbury's Patten Public Library will have a number of programs and activities this summer due, in part, to an overwhelming response from volunteers. With the volunteers' help, the programs will include a summer reading club, story hours for preschool children, craft programs and "special" programs to be announced.

The programs will begin July 6 and run for six weeks.

The summer reading club, "Reach for it! Read," is offered to children ages six to 12. A "Read to Me" club will be held for children who cannot read on their own. Registration for the reading clubs begins on Monday, July 6. More details about the reading clubs will be available at the library at that time.

Weekly craft programs will be held Tuesdays at 3 p.m. The first craft program is scheduled for July 7.

Preschool story hour will be held every Thursday morning at 10:00 beginning July 9. Telephone registrations will begin Tuesday, July 7, at 10. Children must be three years old and residents of Tewksbury. Bedtime story hours are also being planned. The first bedtime story hour will be held Wednesday, July 8 at 7 p.m. Sign up before July 8.

Special programs providing good entertainment are being planned. Check with the library on July 6 for dates.

A complete list of all summer activities is available at the library. For more information on any of these programs, call the library at 640-4490.

Shawsheen Tech summer school

Students from area public and private high schools can take advantage of summer school offerings at Shawsheen Tech. Makeup classes for high school credit in a variety of academic subjects run from July 6 to July 30, including Algebra I and II, general math, business math, geometry, English 9-12, physical education, science, biology, US History, world history, and social studies.

In addition, half a dozen courses are available for either credit or enrichment, including French, Spanish, study skills, pre-college chemistry, and IBM personal computer applications. The chemistry course is a complete laboratory science that meets college admissions requirements. The computer course includes keyboarding, word processing, data base, and Lotus 1-2-3 and is a good choice for people planning to return to the job market.

Most courses meet from 8 to 10:30 a.m., and 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. for those interested in taking two courses. Classes meet Monday through Friday the first week, and Monday through Thursday for subsequent weeks. Cost is $110 per course. To obtain an application call the school at (508) 667-2111.

Enrollment open at Explorers Camp

"I'm Bored! There's nothing to do!" Hearing this already and it's only the beginning of summer vacation? Explorers Camp at Li'l Red Schoolhouse just may be the answer.

Servicing children from three to 14 years of age, Explorers Enrichment Camp offers a fun filled day for campers. Arts and crafts, field trips, sing-alongs, cookouts, and swimming are among the many regular daily activities. However, in addition, campers can sign up and choose instructions in drama, computers, and baseball. Professional instructors are teaching campers the ins and outs of theatre; batting, fielding, and pitching; as well as basic usage, vocabulary and fun of using computers.

Three "theme" programs are planned for this summer. Campers may begin at any time. Spaces are limited, so call now for information to enroll your child today! Li'l Red Schoolhouse is conveniently located at 1503 Andover St. (next to the Dewing School on Route 133); 851-3220.

Voke school offers hands-on courses

A summer program that no only enables area youth to explore career paths, but also pays them for their time is taking place at Shawsheen Tech. Called Project 2000 Summer Youth Program, the offering is funded by the Greater Lowell Regional Employment Board, Title IIB-Summer Youth Employment and Training. To qualify for the program, which pays participants $$4.25 per hour, students must be 14 or 15 years old, live in Billerica or Tewksbury, and be either economically disadvantaged or on an educational plan.

Students attend the programs from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., Monday through Thursday, July 6 to August 13. They spend four days each in six vocational-technical programs under the tutelage of Shawsheen program instructors, trying their hand at skills needed for careers in culinary arts, metal fabrication, diesel mechanics, carpentry, electronics, and drafting.

"The concept behind this program is to give students a better understanding of career options by actually exploring and experiencing the hands-on skills needed for a job, and learning about work opportunities and related careers," said John F. McDermott, assistant superintendent of community services. "We believe this is much more constructive and productive than the unskilled jobs that are typically available to this age group," he added.

Bus transportation will be provided; students must take their own lunch and snacks. For an application form or more information, call the school at (508) 667-2111, ext. 104.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending June 30, Wilmington police officers responded to 25 alarms, made 13 arrests and eight protective custody detentions, investigated two assaults and assisted other departments on four occasions.

Three burglaries were checked out, along with 15 reports of disorderly conduct, two domestic problems were quieted and eight larcenies were logged.

One person was reported missing, medical assistance was rendered three times, five non-criminal complaints were taken and 13 public services were completed.

Three restraining orders were issued, two threat complaints were taken, five traffic accidents were investigated, and five traffic services were carried out. Two trail bike complaints were taken, five incidents of vandalism are still under investigation, a stolen vehicle was recovered and alert neighbors reported 14 incidents of suspicious activity.

Arrests

Tuesday morning Patrolman Jon Shepard arrested Steven Johns, 32 of Washington, N.H. charging hm with motor vehicle violations. Johns was taken to Woburn Court for arraignment.

Lt. Bob LaRivee and Ptlmn Jim Hanlon arrested Herbert Maggio, 41 of Fairview Avenue Wednesday afternoon after responding to a disturbance call. Maggio was charged with domestic assault and battery. He was then transported to Woburn District Court for arraignment.

Officer Alan Reece drove to Tewksbury Wednesday evening to arrest Robert Potter, no address given, formerly of Nashua, on the basis of a default warrant. He was held overnight to be taken to Woburn Court Thursday.

At 10 p.m. Wednesday Officer Steve Mauriello arrested Robert Seaburg, 30 of Medford on the basis of a Wilmington warrant. Unable to post bail, Seaburg was held overnight pending his appearance at the Lowell six man jury.

Friday afternoon Officer Mike Begonis, while assigned to traffic control near the North Intermediate School stopped and arrested Ronald Clark, of Franklin. Clark was charged with operating after revocation of his drivers license. He was bailed for a Monday court appearance.

Saturday night two men were arrested in separate incidents. At 10 p.m. Officer Steve LaRivee arrested Andrew J. Golden, 27 of Billerica at the Reading police station on the basis of an outstanding warrant. He was later admitted to bail.

At 9:45 p.m. Officer David Axelrod arrested Larry Battle, 33 of Sharon charging him with operating after suspension of his drivers license, operating after revocation of his registration, and defective equipment. A computer check revealed a Mansfield police warrant. He was bailed for his appearance in Woburn and Attleboro courts respectively.

Sunday at 7 p.m. three 16-year-old males were arrested by Officer Paul Chalifour after they were found drinking. They were all charged with being minors in possession of alcohol and were released to their parents pending appearances in juvenile court.

Monday at 1:15 a.m. Officer Paul Jepson, while on patrol on Lake Street arrested Brian Jones, 27 of Billerica, charging him with motor vehicle offenses.

Monday night Victor Sousa Jr., 19 of Woburn was arrested by Officer Joe Desmond on Main Street near the Woburn line. Sousa was charged with operating after suspension of his drivers license and unregistered motor vehicle. He was bailed for a Tuesday appearance in Woburn Court.

Charge dropped

A rape charge against a Wilmington man was dropped last Friday after a probable cause hearing in Woburn District Court. The charge against Derek Perry had been lodged in April.

Summer heats up at the Town Park

A series of summer activities has been scheduled for the Wilmington Town Park. The activities are open to the residents of Wilmington.

Horseshoes: Tuesday nights will be for horseshoe competition. Challenge matches will be held in the following categories: singles, doubles, mixed doubles will be scheduled at that time.

Wilmington Rec Director, Ron Swasey loves to ham it up when there's a camera around.

Volleyball: Wednesday nights will be for pickup volleyball matches. Teams and individual players should arrive early to arrange schedules.

We will also be attempting to put together leagues in both horseshoes and volleyball which will be in these formats - open, over 30, and industrial leagues will be co-ed.

If you have a team contact Jack Cushing any night at the town park. We will need a minimum of five teams in a category to start a league.

Family weekend: A weekend of family games, concert and Saturday night sleepout on the ballfield. Watch the Town Crier sports pages for further details, July 18-19.

Fundraiser weekend: We will be having a sports weekend July 24-25-26 to raise funds to replace the softball and volleyball equipment lost in the fire of June 22. The weekend will start with a dance Friday followed by two days of athletic events at the Town Park (one pitch softball, horseshoes and volleyball). See next week's paper for details.

Trombly wins school bus contract

by Arlene Surprenant

Trombly Motor Coach submitted the successful bid to supply buses for the Wilmington School System next year. Trombly submitted the low bid of $184,622. The next lowest bid was $189,765, submitted by Woburn Cab Co. Inc. The other bids were submitted by Tewksbury Transit Inc. and Ryder Student Transportation Services Inc.

Members of the school committee reviewed the bids at their meeting last Wednesday and agreed to go with the low bid. Business Manager Peter DeRoeve said Trombly's figure includes high school students and comes in below the $210,000 budgeted by the committee, which excludes high school students. DeRoeve added, though Trombly was being sold to Laidlaw, that company would honor the Wilmington bid.

Committeemen were pleasantly surprised with Trombly's figure, which would mean more students than originally planned would be bused to school. DeRoeve stopped short of promising all students would be bused saying they couldn't do the same kind of runs with six buses as they did the year before with eight.

Wilmington senior topics

Independence Day

Independence Day this year will be celebrated Saturday, July 4. Departments of the town will be open on Friday, July 3 and Monday July 6. Some of the employees will be taking the holiday on Friday others will take in on Monday. The center will be open both days. I will be off on Monday.

Living alone?

Living along independently can be very enjoyable. But every once in a while it may enter the mind, what if I fall? If I feel ill and need help but do not have the strength to reach the telephone. What can I do? Anyone who lives alone should have a Lifeline button on them at all times when in the house or out in the yard alone. Lifeline is a personal response system linking you up to help 24 hours a day. In case of an accident, illness or attempted breakin, help is there by pushing a button worn around your neck, on your wrist or clipped to your clothing within minutes help will be on its way.

The button, when pushed will activate a communicator connected to your telephone which automatically dials the Lifeline Response Center. When the call is received, immediately voice contact with you will be attempted.If you do not respond the police department or ambulance will be sent to the home. Most of the hospitals in our area have the Lifeline Response System hookups. There are over 200,000 people in the United States and Canada using the Lifeline. If you live alone get the peace of mind you need that help will be there when you need it.

Careful, though

One thing to remember like many programs implemented for the elderly you will find unscrupulous individuals ready to make extra money on trustworthy elders by attempting to sell them a Lifeline system by going door to door. This has happened in many states throughout the country. The senior gives money to the person impersonating a Lifeline sales person and never get the system. Do not buy a Lifeline system from any person arriving at your house. As I mentioned above most of the hospitals in our area have the program. Check with your hospital if they do not carry it, they will refer you to a hospital that they work with.

Cost

The cost for installation of the box should be a one time fee of around $35. The monthly fee should be about the same $35. For some even this amount is to much, but if it is too high for you when your children ask you what you want for your birthday or Christmas, tell them the Lifeline. That is the best gift they can give you if you are living alone.

It will also give them peace of mind that you are not alone with no way to get help. You will be glad you have it on when a sudden illness strikes and as we age that can be at any time.

Picnic

The seniors annual picnic will be held at the Buzzell Senior Center Friday July 17 from noon to 4 p.m. Music for dancing will be provided by the Big Band Sounds of Chet Harnden.

The fair

We all know the money that pays for the picnic comes from the Fall Fair. A Fair that senior volunteers work hard to put together by making articles of all types to sell, donating all kinds of new items received as gifts and never used, making food articles, etc., but a very important part of running a fair if volunteers to work the tables.

To leave all the work to a handful of seniors every year becomes too much for them to handle. To try a new approach this year a paper will be put on the counter. It would be appreciated by the chairman of the group if you would sign it as to how you will be helping. Will it be making articles, food items, donating new articles that have never been used such as clothes, household goods, toys for children or adults or jewelry etc.

Chance books

Also, if you will be willing to sell chances from chance books, work on tables or in the kitchen. Be a volunteer in cleaning up after the fair is over. It will be a one day fair. Put your telephone number after your name. The fair is not only a way to earn enough money to supplement the Elder Services budget but it is also a way to intermingle with one another in a nice way.

McKenna graduates from state firefighting academy

Chief Daniel C. Wandell of the Wilmington Fire Department has announced the recent graduation of Terry L. McKenna from the Massachusetts Firefighting Academy's seven week Recruit Firefighting Program. The program, which is offered tuition free to municipal firefighters in the Commonwealth, is designed to provide new firefighters with the basic skills necessary to insure new firefighters the basic skills necessary to insure their effective performance in their jobs.

The graduation exercises held on June 22, marked the conclusion of an intensive and in-depth seven week program for all students. The students' primary concern was learning basic firefighting skills but during this time they were also introduced to more advanced topics, such as public fire education training, hazardous materials, and stress management, which will be important as their careers progress.

Students receive classroom training in all the basic firefighting skills such as ladders, hose, and protective breathing apparatus, and the classroom training is reinforced by performing practical field evolutions...first under non-fire conditions and then during controlled fire conditions. By graduation, students have had practical, hands on experience with life fires in buildings, vehicles, flammable liquids and will have successfully fought these fires as effectively as safely as possible.

Wiley speaks at Women's Club gala

The General Federation of Women's Clubs of Massachusetts recently held its 100th annual meeting at Seacrest, Falmouth. Attending from Wilmington's club were newly elected President Elizabeth White and Past Presidents Anne Buzzell, Jean Hartka, Jeane Sottile and Marion Woller.

There were many highlights of this memorable meeting, including the after breakfast talk by guest speaker Charles Wiley, journalist and lecturer, on the subject of accuracy in the media.

Mr. Wiley, also a radio and tv talk show personality and commentator has reported major news events from every corner of the world. His photographs and articles have appeared in many publications, including the New York Times, U.S. News, World Report, Newsweek and Time.

After luncheon the awards were announced and the Wilmington club was well represented. The President's project, "New England Shelter for Homeless Veterans" was also presented at this time, followed by a dinner and reception for that outstanding individual, Ann Holland, president elect of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

After an appreciation breakfast, "Uncle Sam" spoke on the joy of volunteerism and the need for it in today's world.

Another guest speaker was Linda Pulliam, humorist and motivator, her topic being "Survival Skills for a Fast Forward Society." She is well known for her light hearted yet thoughtful approach toward making friends with change.

At six o'clock, the Massachusetts State Banquet was held, followed by the colorful Parade of Presidents, honoring past presidents, district directors and 1992-1994 club presidents.

The meeting ended with the installation of officers, and a reception to which all were invited.

Dog report

The Wilmington dog officer is presently holding the following dogs at the Central Animal Hospital in Stoneham:

- Small black dog, mixed breed, 8 months old, taken June 22, ready for adoption.
- Female beagle, red nylon collar, older dog, looking for owner, picked up June 25 on Harris Street.

For dog complaints, call the police dept business line, 658-5071. For adoption or to claim a lost dog, call 658-7845.

Twins hold on to top Tigers, 13-9

Major League
Twins 13 Tigers 9

With the win the Twins were able to even the series at 1-1. This sets up a winner take all final game on Thursday.

The Twins gave the ball to Vinnie DiMauro for his first start of the year. Vinnie pitched six innings, giving up seven hits, five walks and 10 strikeouts.

The Twins scored early, but the Tigers kept coming back. After three and a half innings, the score was 6-5. Vinnie hit a homerun, and for the Tigers Doug Bonnarigo belted a round tripper.

In the last of the fourth the Twins scored seven more runs, but the Tigers came back with four of their own to give them the victory.

Others getting hits for the Twins were Earl Burns, Dave Senarian and Kevin Carroll.

Getting on base with three walks each were Mark Gaglione, Matt Coyne and Shawn Haubner. Hitters for the Tigers were Dan Abbott, Brian McCarthy and Joel McKenna.

Minor League
Cubs 20 Pirates 6

For the Pirates, Brendan Binkowski offered good pitching, while good hitting was turned in by Ricky Williams. Mike Fournier played well in the field.

Mike Carr had a homer for the Cubs, who got good fielding from catcher Pat Sullivan and Adam Fournier. Joe Sullivan did well at the plate.

Reds 10 Cardinals 2

The Reds got good pitching from Timmy Riley and Jimmy Roarke, with excellent defense by Darren Arciero and John Delaney. Roarke and Eric Hiltz each had two hits for the winners.

Mike Mahoney pitched two strong innings of relief for the Cardinals and added a homerun.

Mark Rappoli had a double and a triple, while Ryan Mallon, Nick Tranghese, Greg Lefave and Mark Haubner each had a hit. Martin DeAngelo, Jeff Sousa and C.J. Holmes played well on defense.

Braves 8 Giants 17

For the Braves, Dave Williams hit a double, while Brian Long, Dan Keating and Evan O'Neil played well in the field.

Good plays in the field were made by Giants Brian Grillo and Ed Harrison, while Scott Neville and Jason Thresher did well at the plate.

Farm Division
Astros 9 Giants 8

Great effort by the Giants, as they came from behind to take the lead in the sixth inning. Hitting by Ryan Harvey, Cavanaugh, Anthony Damplo and Scott Buck led the effort.

The Astros edged out a win in the bottom of the sixth with hits by John DiPasquale, Chris Stygles and Anthony Adamcyk. Jason Youngclaus ended this thriller with a solid single to drive in the game winning run.

Angels 5 Rangers 4

Leading the offensive charge for the Rangers were Richie Lee and Kyle Burns. Excellent defensive plays were made by Dave Graves and Greg Inzenga.

The Angels' offense was led by Justin Brady with three hits and John Jamerson, Robert Nagle with two hits each and Erika Perrsons with one.

In the top half of the sixth inning the Rangers came back from a two run deficit to tie the game at 4-4.

The key hit of the game came in the bottom half of the sixth when John Jamerson singled in the winning run.

Angels 12 Mariners 6

Offensive leaders for the Mariners were Andrew Campbell and James McGonagle with three hits each.

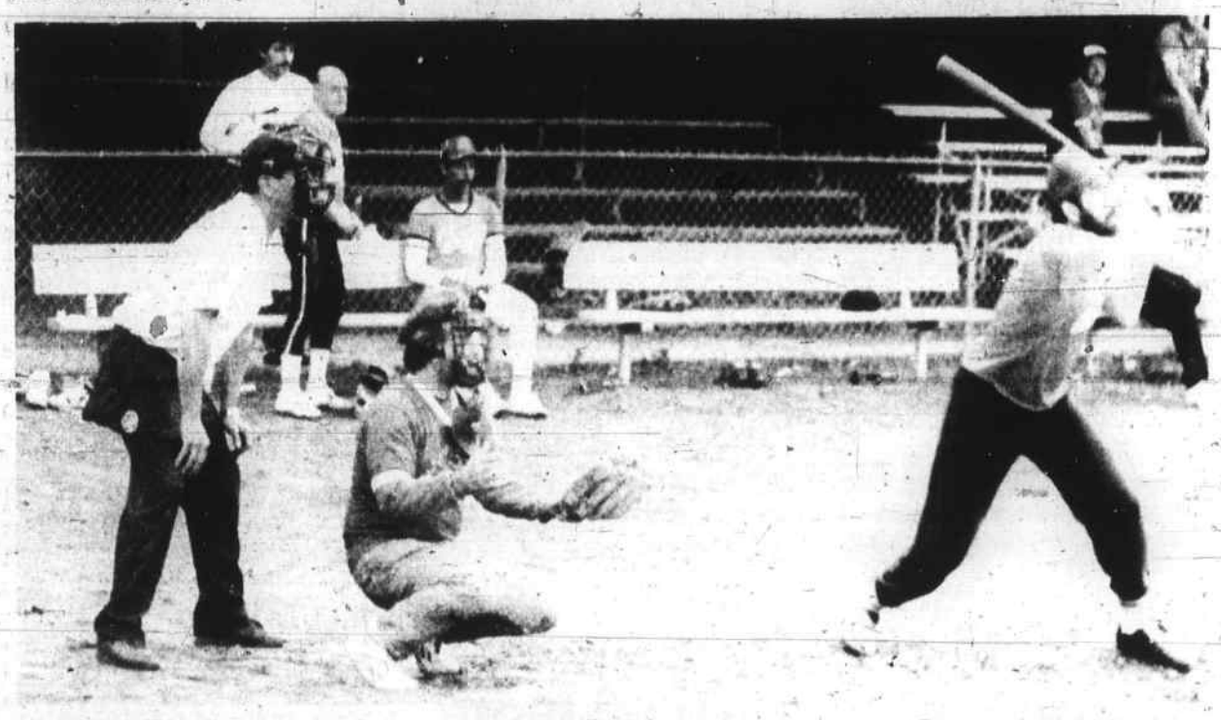

Excellent defensive plays were made by Colin Sheehan and Robert MacIver.

Leading the hit parade for the Angels were Dan Butler with three hits along with Joey Ranno, Erika Perrsons and Brandon Courtois with two hits each.

Two excellent defensive plays by Michael Tocci stopped a Mariners' rally in the top half of the sixth inning.

Fast start A group of older girls get off to a good start in last Thursday night's summer track meet at Tewksbury High School. The meets are now attracting almost 200 youngsters on Thursday nights.

Team effort for Tewksbury summer track

Last Thursday's summer track meet again drew a very large crowd. The number of entrants in each event is getting so large, and there are so many runners now from track clubs in other towns that the remaining meets will have separate races for club members.

The meet ran smoothly because of the efforts of many people, including Cathy Fish and Barbara Brady who ran the concession stand; Debbie and Eric Takach and others who ran the awards table; Heather and Kim Farrand; Leslie Ornelas and Ann Lane who did the timing and place picking. Without the help of these people and others who work at the meets every week, the summer meets would not be possible.

The next summer meet will be Thurday, July 9 at 6 p.m. at the Tewksbury High School track. The next meets will be July 16 and 23.

Soccer squad completes superb season

Wilmington's under 10-1 soccer team, competing in Division I, recently completed a very successful season with a record of seven wins and three losses.

The team ended the season with a win over Wakefield, avenging an earlier loss and eliminating Wakefield from the Commissioners' Cup Tournament.

Coaches Don Jones and Chris Arciero would like to acknowledge and thank the players for their dedication to the team and their display of good sportsmanship in representing Wilmington during the season

Sportsmen's Club field day

The Lowell Sportsmen's Club, one of the oldest Sportsmen's Clubs in the country, is pleased to announce its' annual field day Sunday, July 12 from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. This event is open to the public, typically attracting over 1,000 people from all over the Merrimack Valley.

With 15 various competitions and attractions, raffles and door prizes every hour, a bake sale, a penny sale and a roasted pig barbecue, there is something for everyone.

The club canteen will also sell refreshments and there will be free balloons for the little ones and special entertainment will be offered.

The club is located on Swain Road off Route 40 in North Chelmsford. It is easily reached by taking Route Three north off 495 to exit 33, Route 40 North Chelmsford. For more information, call Greg Jones at 251-4823.

Polymer sponsors Olympic hopeful

Polymer Technology Corporation employees Dave Jesser, senior cost analyst, and Cheryl Angelis, executive secretary, recently presented Chavela Aaron and her daughter, Kyisha, with a $5,000 check. Aaron is a world ranked Tae Kwon Do artist and Olympic hopeful from Dorchester and a member of the U.S. Junior Olympic Team

Polymer Technology employees initiated a fundraising campaign in December to raise the money to offset Aaron's training expenses, including travel to and from competitions, hotel, food, uniforms, and equipment. Polymer Technology has supported Aaron's Tae Kwon Do training and competition since last fall.

In addition to her Olympic aspirations, Aaron offers free instruction in martial arts to neighborhood children as an alternative to the streets. She also volunteers for Fair Foods, a non-profit agency that provides food and nutritional education to Boston's needy.

Polymer Technology Corporation is the worldwide leader in oxygen permeable contact lens material and care solutions sold under the Boston brand name. For more information on Aaron and the Polymer fund drive, please contact Polymer Technology Corporation, 100 Research Drive, Wilmington, Mass. 01887. Phone: (617) 658-6111.

Pulmonary rehab

Members of the first 10-week pulmonary rehabilitation program at the Winchester Hospital Family Medical (Regional Health) Center. In front, from left, Kenneth Stackhouse of Tewksbury, Albert Bosbach of Reading, Catherine McCue and Herbert Fielding, both of Wilmington. In the rear is John Rose of Lynnfield.

Patients breathe more easily after pulmonary rehab program

Six people recently "graduated" from the first 10-week pulmonary rehabilitation program at Winchester Hospital Family Medical Center. An extension of the pulmonary rehabilitation program at Winchester Hospital, the program helps patients with chronic obstructive pulmonary disorders (COPD) such as asthma, emphysema and chronic bronchitis, to overcome the limitations of their condition and enjoy a more satisfying life.

"I'm very glad I took part in this program" said Catherine McCue of Wilmington, who has emphysema. "It makes me realize that there are things I can do that I might have been afraid to do otherwise, such as exercising. It also taught me to take each day as it comes," she adds.

"This program was good physically and mentally for me, said Kenneth Stackhouse of Tewksbury, who also has emphysema. "You realize you can do something to improve your condition, and I've seen a great improvement in my stamina. I play golf, and the program has already made a difference in my game. I'm breathing better, now that I know how, and I'm standing taller. I have a treadmill and intend to keep up with my exercises now that the program is over," he adds.

The pulmonary rehabilitation program is tailored to meet the individual needs of each patient. There are 30 sessions in all — three each week — during which participants have sessions with a respiratory therapist, physical therapist, nutritional, registered nurse or pharmacist, and representatives from the Social Services Dept. who address patients' special needs in coping with a chronic illness.

Participants meet in small groups and discuss problems they have in common — from how to monitor the status of their condition to relaxation techniques. The sessions also include exercise, led by a physical therapist.

"The instructors were marvelous," said Stackhouse. "They were so caring."

There was such variation among the participants, but the instructor gave the right assistance to each of us," adds Frank Flynn of Woburn.

Flynn, who has emphysema as well as asthma, echoes Mrs. McCue's sentiments about the program. "You understand that something can be done about your condition — and that you're the one to do it. I'm glad I went," says Flynn. "And I would recommend the program to anyone with a similar condition." Mr. Stackhouse agrees. "I hope more people will learn about this program and take advantage of it."

For more information about the pulmonary rehabilitation program at Winchester Hospital Family Medical Center or to receive a free brochure, call the center at (508) 657-3910.

Summer outings offered to challenge area youth

Summer vacation days offer many opportunities for parents and children to enjoy educational activities, trips, and projects together. There have been several lists and articles in the newspapers in the past two weeks with suggestions for summer family fun, and I would like to suggest some guidelines that might help your student/child when September and school roll around.

*Choose activities that introduce children to historical events. There is almost an unlimited number of historical sites within an hour's drive of the Merrimack Valley:

Old North Bridge in Concord, (508) 369-6993.

Boston by Little Feet, Boston, (617) 367-2345.

Black Heritage Trail, Boston

Charles River Museum, Waltham (617) 893-5410.

Lowell National Historical Park, Lowell (508) 459-1000.

House of Seven Gables, Salem (508) 744-0991.

Before setting out for one of these sites, take some time to ask your youngster what he/she has heard about the topic. Teachers call this "tapping prior knowledge," and it can help transform a trip into an educationally exciting experience. After hearing what the child knows, however vague or inexact, write down some questions that might be answered during the visit.

In preparation for a trip to the new Boott Cotton Mills Museum (part of the Lowell National Historical Park) you might look over David Macauley's book The Mill, or read an award-winning novel about mill life, Lydie, by Katherine Patterson. By the way, the Grand Opening of the Boott Cotton Mills Museum is Saturday, June 20, and there is free admission from noon to 5 p.m. on this opening day.

Make a simple journal to use as reference during the visit. Reviewing the questions after the trip could lead to a trip to the library or to another visit to the site later in the summer.

*Take open-ended, scientific discovery into nature and museum trips. Choose your favorite beach or park, or plan a trip to an activity/science museum, such as:

New England Aquarium, Boston (617) 973-5200.

Discovery Museum of Acton, Acton (508) 264-4201.

Sports Museum of New England, Boston (617) 78-SPORT.

Garden in the Woods, Framingham, (508) 877-6574.

Whale Watches, Gloucester, 1-800-877-5110 or 1-800-942-5464; Newburyport 1-800-848-1111.

Babson Map and Globe Museum, Wellesley (617) 239-4232.

As you prepare for these outings, challenge your youngster to make predictions about the trip. Will it be high or low tide? What will you find in a tidal pool? How many seals will be at the aquarium? What exhibit will you see first? Again, it would be best to write these predictions down in a journal or a notebook. Use the book for illustrations or short notes about the trip.

*Encourage meaningful reading, writing, and listening activities. The summer is a perfect time to use the skills taught during the school year. The most effective reading and writing flow naturally from vacation events. There are many good books about ocean life, like Swimmy by Leo Lioni, that would add interest to a beach trip.

Early in the summer, have your child make lists of favorites; favorite books, favorite sports, favorite colors, favorite activities. Send next year's teacher a post card from a vacation spot.

*Here is one last suggestion for those long car trips. Have your child(ren) select an audio tape of a favorite book. Both "Books on Tape" (1-800-252-6996) and "Recorded Books" (1-800-638-1304) have extensive listings for children and young adults. Most teachers would not recommend these tapes as a substitute for reading the books, but it certainly is a fun, painless way to become acquainted with interesting, good quality children's literature. If, in your trips to the library, you find you need more suggestions for summer reading, contact Tewksbury's Curriculum Office (508) 640-0639, for a multi-level reading list, geared to all school age children.

*Note: In preparation for writing these suggestions, I found several books that would help families looking for more summer activities.

Kidding Around Boston, A Young Person's Guide to the City, by Helen Byers.

The Young Travelers' Guide and activity Book, by Harriet Webster.

School's Out! It's Summer! by Joan Bergstrom.

"50 Things to do with your Kids" special section in the Beacon Newspapers, June 11, 1992.

Open house

In celebration of the completion of its expansion, Suburban Healthcare Center, 15 Stevens St., Andover will host a public open house, Tuesday, June 23 from 3 to 7 p.m.

Jean McAuliffe, Administrator for Suburban Healthcare Center, hopes area residents will use the open house to get to know the facility if they have never used it or to get reacquainted if they haven't visited for a while.

The health center has doubled the number of patient examination rooms from six to 12. Mrs. McAuliffe notes that with five full time physicians and three part time, and laboratory and x-ray services on site, Suburban Healthcare Center is uniquely prepared to offer comprehensive care for preventive services, as well as urgent care, suturing, school physicals, well baby care, and minor surgical procedures.

People can use Suburban Healthcare Center's walk-in services if they don't have an appointment or choose one of its physicians as their primary care provider.

This is Suburban Healthcare Center's second expansion since the center opened in 1986. The center is open every day except Christmas: Monday through Friday 8 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturday 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Sunday and holidays 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Suburban Healthcare Center is a member of most major HMOs.

Outdoors column

I'd rather be on top, thanks

by Bill Conlon

The most spectacular way to catch bass, absolutely, is on the surface.

Working a jig along a submerged rock field is very effective, and so is oozing a rubber worm along the lily pads. More effective, actually, if you count the total number of fish hauled into the boat. Jigs can be embarassingly effective at times: just cast, retrieve, unhook your fish and cast again.

But "deep" fishing hasn't much of a thrill. Your jig may suddenly stop, connoting a strike; or your rubber worm may start swimming away on its own. Fun, but its only half the possible fun.

For true, heart-wrenching thrills on a bass pond, try working the top.

Big bass and small, particularly on warm summer nights, come into the shallows to gorge themselves on all the crawly things found where water meets the shore: Tadpoles and frogs, water bugs of all types, terrestrials that fall into the pond from moths to mice -- nearly everything is edible. It's a smorgasbord.

When the bass are rummaging in the shallows, almost every lure in the box will work, not matter what time of day or night. I'm not sure why, but the same rubber worm that tore 'em up in the afternoon will be just as effective at 2 a.m. on a moonless night in the shallows. (Just work on the assumption that bass can see in absolute darkness and you won't go wrong.)

Once I pull the boat past the lily pads, into casting range of the little sheltered pockets of open water between the pads and the trees, my first choice is always a surface plug. No matter what else is in the tackle box -- and that's a lot of stuff! -- my first pick will be a topwater lure. It's a genetic problem. Can't help it.

The two best surface lures in this part of the world are the Jitterbug, by Arbogast, and Heddon's Crazy Crawler. Runners-up would have to be Heddon's Tiny Torpedo, and the Zara Puppy, the smaller version of the oversized Heddon Zara Spook.

Sorry, but buzzbaits and twisty-leg plugs leave me cold. Rubber frogs are one in a hundred to work, but ...

Jitterbug first, or Crazy Crawler. Try the rest later.

One trick I've learned is to cast as close to shore as you dare. The ideal flip will land the 'Bug on the last leaf of the last bush hanging over the water. Give it a tug and let it splash into the water, then anxiously wait. Count to 10, and wait for the ripples from the splash to fade away before anything else.

By waiting, you give a fish time to come over and take a look. Unless you dropped your offering right on his head, spooking him, the bass will be a few yards away and needs a few seconds to mosey over for a look. By casting close to shore, you've got the best chance of actually putting it where he's looking -- shoreward.

Imagine a fat bug falling out of a tree and into the water. Yeah.

Then begin your retrieve. Here's where the artistry begins.

Today, bass want the stop-and-go retrieval. Tomorrow, it might be a steady burble-burble-burble or even a high-speed skittering retrieve to send them into a rage. Experiment, and try different colors, then stick with whatever works. Every good tackle box should have a solid black Jitterbug, a frog pattern, and maybe a redhead with white body. There is a weedless Jitterbug, with the hooks pointed up, but I've found it takes a real monster to hook himself.

One drawback to fishing a surface plug is the number of strikes will be much higher than the number of fish ending up in the livewell. Bass often miss, or hit short, or they just never get snagged on the hook. And part of the problem is your fault.

When a strike occurs, its natural to haul back and set the hook. But what if he missed the mark? Instead, give him a half second during the strike to hook himself. Wait to feel the tug before setting the hook. After all, if there is no tug, there was no contact to begin with. Waiting is extremely difficult during the strike, but do it.

Of course, if nothing's paying the least attention to your plug, hang it up. Plugs only work sometimes, but when they do ... !

And there is something else odd about a bass strike on the surface. You can't be sure how big th fish its until he pulls. The splash doesn't tell you much about his size, and small fish can make a pretty big splash, as I've learned, but a monster bass will often make no splash or a small one.

Perhaps old mossyback is too good to be sloppy, or maybe he's just too old to play with his food, but a real monster bass will often pick a 'Bug off the top with a tiny little "sipping" noise. Your plug just slips below the surface, without a sound. It might be a sunfish. Or maybe not. Expect the big ones, at all times.

But the ultimate, the best of the best, is when the water beneath your Jitterbug suddenly erupts in a three-foot swirl of white foam, one that no mere fish could ever make. Only an alligator could make a splash that big. Kaa-BLOOOSH!

Then the drag on your reel starts to scream. Water spraying all over the place, and then he jumps, giving you a single second that feels like a lifetime long. Ahhh! Only a surface plug can provoke that kind of fury.

You've gotta love it!

Track meet July 24-25

The said premises are conveyed subject to a twenty (20) foot drain easement along the westerly side thereof, as shown on said plan.

The said premises are also conveyed subject to a reservation in favor of the grantors, in common with the grantee and his heirs and assigns, of a right to use said Country Club Drive for all purposes for which streets are commonly used in the Town of Tewksbury, Massachusetts."

This property has an address of 70 Country Club Drive, Tewksbury, Massachusetts.

Including as part of the realty, all portable or sectional buildings at any time placed upon said premises and all furnaces, ranges, heaters, plumbing, gas and electric fixtures, screens, mantels, shades, screen doors, storm doors and windows, oil burners, gas burners and all other fixtures or whatever kind and nature at present or hereafter installed in or on the granted premises in any manner which renders such articles usable in connection therewith so far as the same are or can by agreement of parties, be made a part of the realty."

Terms of Sale:

Said premises will be sold subject to any and all unpaid taxes and assessments, tax sales, tax titles and other municipal liens and water liens, tenants or parties in possession; and encumbrances superior to the mortgage referenced herein; if any there are, and Five Thousand dollars ($5,000.00) in cash or certified check will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale as a deposit and the balance will be due in thirty (30) days.

The Mortgagee reserves the right to postpone the sale to a later date by public proclamation at the time and date appointed for the sale and to further postpone at any adjourned sale date by public proclamation at the time and date appointed for the adjourned sale date.

In the event that the successful bidder at the foreclosure sale shall default in purchasing the within described property according to the terms of the Memorandum of Sale executed at the time of foreclosure, the Mortgagee reserves the right to sell the property by foreclosure deed to the second highest bidder providing that said second highest bidder shall deposit with the attorney listed below the amount of the required deposit as set forth herein within three (3) business days after written notice of the default of the previous high bidder and the balance shall be paid in or within thirty (30) days of the written notice. This sale may be postponed or adjourned from time to time, if necessary, by the Attorney for the mortgagee at the scheduled time and place of sale. The description of the premises contained in said mortgage shall control in the event of typographical error in this publication. Other terms to be announced at the sale.

MORTGAGEE'S NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE

Premises: 43 Merrimack Meadow Lane, Unit 44, Building 10 Merrimack Meadows Condominium Tewksbury, Massachusetts

By virtue and in execution of the Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Kenneth M. Robinson to First Eastern Mortgage Corporation dated June 8, 1989 and recorded with Middlesex County (Northern District) Registry of Deeds in Book 4914, Page 285, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at Public Auction at 1:00 P.M., on the 24th day of July, A.D., 1992, upon the mortgaged premises, 43 Merrimack Meadow Lane, Unit 44, Building 10, Merrimack Meadows Condominium, Massachusetts, as described below, all and singular the premises described in said mortgage,

To wit:

The Unit ("Unit") number 44 in Building 10 (the "Building") of the Merrimack Meadows Condominium (the "Condominium"), located in Tewksbury, Massachusetts which was created pursuant to M.G.L. Chapter 183A by the recording of a Master Deed (the "Master Deed") dated May 8, 1989 and recorded on May 9, 1989 with the Middlesex North District Registry of Deeds in Book 4883, Page 166, which has a mailing address of: 43 Merrimack Meadow Lane, Tewksbury, MA 01867.

Said Unit contains approximately 1,965 square feet and is shown on the floor plans of the Building recorded with the Master Deed on the floor plan attached hereto and made a part hereof, to which is affixed the verified statement in the form required by said chapter 183A, Section 9.

Said Unit is hereby conveyed together with (1) an undivided 2.022 percent (%) interest in the Common Areas and Facilities of the Condominium, as it may be amended pursuant to provisions of the Master Deed; (2) The exclusive right to use parking garage 44D. (3) The exclusive right to use those common areas and facilities appurtenant to said Unit as set forth in the Master Deed; (4) All other rights, easements, agreements, interests and provisions contained in the Master Deed, the Declaration of Trust of the Condominium recorded with said Registry of Deeds on May 9, 1989 in Book 4883, Page 200 (the "Declaration of Trust") and the Rules and Regulations adopted pursuant thereto (the "Rules and Regulations"), as any of the same may be amended from time to time pursuant to the provisions thereof.

Said Unit is conveyed subject to and with the benefit of: (1) The provisions of Chapter 183A as the same may be amended from time to time; (2) The provisions of the Master Deed, including, without limitation, the title matters, set forth in Exhibit A to the Master Deed and the Grantor's rights to add additional phases to the Condominium as set forth in the Master Deed, the Declaration of Trust and the Rules and Regulations, in each case as the same may be amended from time to time pursuant to the provisions thereof; (3) Real estate taxes assessed against the Unit and the Common Areas and facilities which are not yet due and payable; (4) provisions of existing building and zoning laws.

The rights, agreements, easements, restrictions, provisions and interests set forth above, together with any amendments thereto shall constitute covenants running with the land and shall insure to the benefit of and bind, as the case may be, any person having at any time any interest or estate in the Unit, his agents, employees, licensees, visitors and lessees as though the same were fully set forth herein.

The Unit may be used only for residential purposes.

TERMS OF SALE: Said premises will be sold and conveyed subject to all outstanding municipal or other public taxes, tax titles, assessments, liens or claims in the nature of liens, rights of tenants and parties in possession, and existing encumbrances of record, if any, which take precedence over the said mortgage above described.

FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS and NO/100 ($5,000.00) must be paid by certified, bank, treasurer's or cashier's check at the time and place of the sale by the purchaser as a deposit. The balance of the purchase price is to be paid in cash, or by certified check, bank cashier's check or bank treasurer's check within 30 days thereafter at the Law Offices of Shapiro & Kreisman, 492 Old Connecticut Path, Framingham, MA 01701 (508) 872-0221.

Other terms to be announced at the sale.

A local perspective:

The San Francisco Earthquake of 1906

Ed Note: Aaron Foster of Tewksbury sent this letter home in 1906, to reassure his parents that all was well after the Great San Francisco Earthquake and Fire.

Foster had shipped the inventory of his furniture shop by train to San Francisco, then lost his wares to the devastating fires after the 'quake.

Tewksbury Deputy Police Chief Walter Jamieson thought this letter might make for interesting reading. It sure does. Thanks, Walter!

Alameda April 26, 1906
Dear Father & Mother

You have no doubt been expecting to get a letter from me for a week, but I have been so busy during the day and so completely done up when I get home at night that I have not been able to get at it until now. Kate & the children have written and presume you have received their letters. I telegraphed to you the morning of the disaster - Wednesday April 18, 1906. A day never to be forgotten.

As all telegraph wires were down the Telegraph Co. sent the messages out on the overland trains until a point was reached where the wires were still in working order: but there were so many messages to be sent I am afraid you didn't receive it promptly. I put it in at 9:30 a.m . April 18 at Oakland Pier: at 5-15 a.m. on that date the shock came: we were all in bed at the time. The noise accompanying the quake was frightful. The house rocked so badly that it was almost impossible to keep on my feet: it seemed as though the house must fall, but it didn't and finally settled back into shape as though nothing had happened; the succeeding shocks were of a much milder force and only succeeded in completing the wreck caused by the main quake.

During the heavy shake the noise caused by the earthquake combined with the racket of falling chimneys and cracking walls was enough to make one think that it was a general breaking up of the universe: Alameda stood it pretty well: wooden houses as a rule not being wrecked, but nine out of ten chimneys were thrown down and walls were cracked in all directions.

You ought to see the walls in this house, cracks run through the plastered walls in all directions and the chimney, while not thrown down, is cracked badly. The official inspector of chimneys has not been around yet, so we are unable to light a fire in the house and have to do our cooking on oil stoves and for heating water we have the old cook stove set up in the back yard. Brick and stone buildings received more damage and on Park St. several buildings were badly wrecked and some that were not thrown down are so badly damaged that they will have to be taken down and rebuilt. Irving and I started for the city at the regular time but found no trains running out of Alameda.

The tracks having sunk in some places and in others thrown up three or four feet, it was 8:30 a.m. when word was passed along the line that a train would run over the Fruitvale Ave. Bridge and connect with the Oakland Local for the mole. We went over on this and while we were waiting for the train at Fruitvale the ground began to shake again, but it didn't amount to much and finally the train was off and we started for the pier.

When we arrived at the beginning of the mole the train was stopped, and word was brought that San Francisco was badly wrecked and all along the waterfront was on fire, that martial law had been declared and the RR had been ordered to deliver no passengers to the city. We got off the train and made our way on foot to the end of the mole, but were not allowed to go on board of the Ferry Boat. The two boats that had previously taken on passengers and gone to the city were turned back to the Oakland side without being allowed to land their passengers.

We stood on the wharf at the end of the mole and watched the fires in the city. We saw the flames devour block after block of buildings.

The water mains were broken in a dozen places out near the reservoirs so that no water was to be had to use on the flames & San Francisco was at the mercy of the fire: We watched until about one or two o'clock & then went back to Alameda That night the sky was lurid from the fire: I went down to the Bay shore about eleven o'clock that night & looked at the burning city across the bay: At a distance of about 8 or 10 miles it was a grand & God sight.

Thursday morning Irving & I started early and finally got through arriving in the City at about 9-30 to 10 a.m. The most appalling sight met our eyes: streets sunk in some places & thrown high up in others, huge cracks in the ground ran in all directions; not only in the filled in ground, but up through solid pack as well: Wrecked & burned buildings in every direction: streets full of iron wires, brick and all manner of debris: Market Street was still so hot from the fires still burning in the fallen buildings on each side of the street, that it was impossible to go up town that way: so we switched off by the way of Mission St where it was cooler; that part having been burned the day before; up Mission Street we scrambled over piles of brick, still hot, that in places filled the whole street from side to side from four to 10 feet deep: Here and there a wreck of a street car, with nothing but the iron work left: dead horses here and there where they had been killed by falling walls & singed & burned afterwards. In one bunch I counted 16 steers that were caught by falling walls & afterward the fire swept over them. We continued up Mission Street, 2nd Street and then passed through into Market St., up past the Palace Hotel - the Crocker Building, the Chronicle Building, the Examiner Building, the Call Building, the Union Bank Building, all still standing, but badly cracked and warped, and gutted by the fire. Not a building had escaped; it was an awful sight; we went up Market Street to Granite Ave. and then turned north going up Grant Ave to Geary St; there up past our old store on Geary to Illinois Square. We had not penetrated a mile & a quarter into the burned district and came in sight of live fires that were forging west through the residence part of the city.

The whole business section now being destroyed. On the south side of Illinois Square our new store lay in ruins, everything burned & wrecked - on the west side of the Square the new St. Francis Hotel, partly wrecked by the earthquake & then gutted by fire: We sat down in the square & watched the fire two blocks away, but giving out heat of such intensity that we could approach no nearer. The square was filled with trucks-baggage and a crowd of people who had been burned out. It was a pitiful sight. Food at this time was not to be had and water which was brought from the ferry sold for 15 cents a glass.

We sat and watched the flames lick up the Olympic Club, the large hotels in that section and then make an assault on "Nob Hill." From here we saw the Crocker House, the Colton House, the Hopkins House, the Stanford House, the Flood House and the Fairmount Hotel all go up in flames and smoke, then the fire moved west again.

The roar of the fire, the crash of falling walls and the screams of men and women and children caught in the burning buildings or imprisoned under falling walls, made a chorus never to be forgotten: While above all could be heard the boom, boom of exploding dynamite blocks ahead of the fire where buildings were being blown up to stay the progress of the fire: whole blocks were blow down by the explosive, but the fire fiend laughed and sprang across the space as though it was but a step. At Van Ness Avenue the fire was finally checked; only in two or three places did it cross this avenue. Until you go south of McAllister Street and there it went out as far as George St.

After I left Union Square I went out on Geary St as far as I could. I went within three blocks of the fire, in fact so near that the heat from the buildings that had just been burned and the fire in front was impossible to bear & I had to beat a retreat; but what a sight I saw - a wall of fire two miles long, sweeping through the wooden houses in the residence section, much in the same manner as you have seen fire sweep through tall dry grass. It was a sight never to be forgotten. A sight which I would not have missed; but such a sight as I hope never to see again.

I was now about two miles from the ferry & began to pick my way back to the boat and it was a long, hard, hot trip. At last I reached the boat and returned to Alameda, thoroughly done up. I have been over every day since and when I get home at night I am in condition to eat supper and go to bed.

Relief is pouring in from all directions and there is no lack of food for those burned out; on the morning of the 21st there were over 300,000 people camped in the park. The fire burned over a section of between fifteen & sixteen square miles and occasioned a loss of about $2,000,000,000 on which there was an insurance of only about $225,000,000. What little money I had was invested in a machinery business in the heart of the burned district and it went up in smoke, a total loss. I am now out of a job and out of pocket at the same time.

Our firm starts up again and in two or three weeks I will be in the harness again: large salaries will not be paid again for a year or more until we get well under way, but the best grade of the employees will be retained and will receive salaries on which they can manage to live. So you can see we are not in such terrible straits after all; though we are not feeling particularly rich either.

However, we are all in perfect health and in good shape to take things as they come. Lots of men were rich on the 17th of April and were paupers on the 19th. The fire burned four days unchecked, and during that time changed the fortune of many a man. We are a great deal better off than many others. The Coles were all down to Ben Lamond, except Fortie, so are all right. None of them are burned out though the fire came within one block of Forties' House. I saw his baker (Mrs. F.P. Coles mother) also Mrs. Smith (Grace's husband) and they told me about the rest of the folks:

Oakland was damaged to the extent of a couple of Million by the shake but had no fire. Santa Rosa was wiped out. Completely wrecked by the quake & then burned. All the good shaking up or rather shaking down, but San Francisco of course is the center of disaster. Think of it, a loss greater than the combined loss at the Chicago fire, the Boston fire and the Baltimore fire all rolled into one

I am afraid I am stringing this letter out too long, and you will get tired of reading about the disaster. Of any disaster to Oakland or that you may read in the paper - don't give a thought, both places are in good shape and are taking care of over 150,000 refugees from San Francisco. The only damage on this side of the bay is confined to the shaking down of chimneys in general & some houses and stores and factories.

Don't worry about us, we are all right. Somewhat shaken up it is true, but not injured in any way, and not scared a little bit. The Breuner Company lost the store on Geary Street, the store on Market Street, the delivery dept. and work shops on Stevenson St and a two story warehouse 60 ft by 250 ft on Bluxome St., all full of goods and now nothing but ashes. The Sterling Furniture Co. (the Coles) have their warehouse left and are now doing business there.

I will stop writing now. I could not describe it all if I should write for a week and the experiences I have had during the past week would fill a good sized book. I have been fireman, hospital steward, and pack horse. Before closing I must tell you of a little experience Mr. Bruener and myself had on Market St. On the 5th day after the fire orders were received by the regular troops to impress everyone who came along and clear the center of Market St. of the bricks that filled it. We were prepared for them and as we went up Market Street we passed thousands of men at work under the guns of the soldiers. We got up nearly to the Palace Hotel when a trooper stuck a big navy revolver in our faces and ordered us to get back and go to tossing bricks. It is the first time I ever had a gun pointed at me so close - not six inches from my nose - and I can assure you it was not pleasant. It looked as big as a cannon. We had each a letter from the governor of the state allowing us to go where & when we pleased & upon showing these we were allowed to proceed.

Some were not so fortunate. A refusal meant a bullet through the head and no nonsense about it. Many a man in San Francisco now knows what strict martial law means. Hoodlums caught stealing were shot down without an instant's hesitation & the numbers so killed will never be known. But for stealing, and some for baser crimes no less than a hundred men have been shot & killed. I get this information from inside sources. This kind of news is suppressed as far as possible. I have personally seen some of it, by falling walls and by fire it is now estimated the killed will be about 1500 though the total will never be known, as many bodies will have been burned & leave no trace. The disaster to San Francisco cannot be overdrawn. Make it as bad as you can imagine and you will fall far short of the reality.

Here I am continuing to write after having finished my letter a page or two back. So I will stop short before I string out a page or two more. You will receive a letter from Kate in a few days.

Don't worry a little bit about us. We are all o.k.

Yours truly,
A.L. Foster

Hair is the Total You

ENLIGHTENED THINKING
By Linda Gaffey

Subjecting hair to the summer sun often serves to bring on highlights that many women find quite attractive. In fact, highlighting that mimics the sun's effect is a hair coloring technique employed by color technicians. However, while the sun can work to improve the coloring of untreated hair, chemically treated hair should not be expected to brighten with sun exposure. The sun is treated hair's worst enemy. This is due to the fact that chemical treatment (partially) strips the surface of the hair cuticle and leaves it susceptible to damage by the elements. Thus, the sun's ultraviolet rays can oxidize the hair to make it appear dull. With this in mind, women with treated hair should protect their locks from the sun. The summer is a wonderful time to try a vibrant new hair color and here at SHAWSHEEN HAIR SALON we'd be delighted to sun shine your hair with the latest hair color highlighting techniques from Matrix. We serve you with a complete line of Matrix products, all of them environmentally sound. When you look good, we look good, so for a complete beauty experience, call us for an appointment. We're easy to reach at 161 Shawsheen Ave., Rt. 129, Wilmington, and our salon is open six days and evenings, closed on Sunday. M/C and Visa welcome.

ARE YOU PROTECTED?
by Edward H. Wilkens
FOR ASSOCIATION DIRECTORS
QUESTION: I am a director of a major trade association. Is there insurance to protect me from liability claims?
ANSWER: Yes, it is called Directors-Officers Liability Insurance. Many areas of trade association activity could be made the basis of some sort of claim by an individual or company. Decisions you make may help some members and hurt others. You have to cover your tracks for those that it hurts. Even though claims may be proved groundless, the expense of legal defense can be enormous--particularly when antitrust matters are involved. Be sure you are insured for this eventuality.

OFFICERS of trade associations are open to financial risk. Insurance protection is available.

WHAT A 4TH!

DUTCH BOY OF Kitchner/Waterloo, Ontario Canada took thirteenth place in the 1991 Drum Corps International Competition. They will be appearing in the Independence Day Open and the Wakefield Fourth of July Parade this Saturday.

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

The Fourth of July has always been an exciting event in Wakefield and that tradition will continue this year as all of Saturday night will be taken over by the special sounds of the various drum and bugle corps that will be appearing in the community.

For the fifty-first year, Wakefield will be having its celebrated parade that attracts people not only from the community but from far-flung communities around the state as well. Many people remember they have a long-lost friend or relative living in Wakefield that they should go visit and by the way "while we're here lets go to the parade.

This year two extra added attractions will be drawing people to the parade. The Wakefield Independence Day Committee has announced that Stoneham native and 1992 Olympic Bronze Medalist Nancy Kerrigan will be making a special visit home to act as Grand Marshall and providing the music for the parade will be a number of championship drum and bugle corps.

The fact of the drum and bugle corps appearances is one reason why the parade will be stepping off late. The start time is 5 p.m., from the Moulton Playground on Albion Street with the finish expected about two hours later as the parade makes its way the 1.5 miles to the common.

The timing is very important as the first drum and bugle corps units of the parade must immediately afterward make their way over to Colonel James Landrigan Field for their appearance in the Second Annual Drum Corps East "Independence Open" Competition.

The show will mark the participating groups fourth performance of five that will be given in a three day period.

On Friday, July 3, at least four of the corps - the Boston Crusaders (Boston), the Cadets (Hackensack, New Jersey), the Dutch Boy (Kitchner, Ontario), and the Crossmen (West Chester, Pennsylvania) - will perform at a competition in Bristol, Rhode Island. On July 4, the same groups will join others marching in the Bristol parade which is at least as big a production as Wakefield's and then they will travel to Wakefield for the night time festivities.

As if that is not enough, on Sunday, July 5, they will be in Beverly for another show.

As the schedule indicates, Wakefield falls just about in the middle of a season that started last week and will wind up July 18 with the regional finals at Boston University.

The Landrigan Field show will include the corps already mentioned as well as Skyriders (Desoto, Texas), and the Springfield Ambassadors (Springfield). The Star of Indiana (Bloomington, Indiana) will make a special appearance to play the Star Spangled Banner and kick-off the show. Another exhibition group will be the Connecticut Hurricanes.

Those groups participating in the competitions will be scored on the marks for their brass sections, percussion sections, auxiliary units, (color guards, etc.), and best drum majors.

It is estimated that the first of the Corps will start to arrive in Wakefield between 1:30 p.m. and 1:45 p.m., on Saturday.

At that point locals will be seeing some pretty elaborate rigs pulling into the area around Moulton Playground. The buses carrying the musicians also act as the dressing rooms and many of the groups have trailer trucks that are especially designed to carry the uniforms and instruments from one place to the next.

Wakefield resident Penny Crooker is an organizer with Drum Corps East and has been involved in the groups ever since the days when Wakefield's St. Joseph's Church sponsored the Senoritas. She notes that the last local group disbanded about 10 years ago.

She noted that at one point in Massachusetts had as many as 30 marching units.

"Today there are to many other activities that the kids are into," Crooker said.

"You had so many groups, you would have to have two competitions in one day. One in the afternoon and one at night," she added. "We used to have so many kids it took us two days to run the finals."

As an example of the time commitment, Crooker noted that the Boston Crusaders practice every night until 11:30 p.m.

Another commitment is the financial factor. One local parent, said that when the group was recruiting her son, who plays first trumpet in a high school band, she estimated the cost would have been at least $400 per-season.

Sweet Adelines are off to Spain

The Merrimack Valley Chapter of Sweet Adelines from Wilmington left Logan Airport on June 30 to sing in Madrid as it is declared the European Cultural Capitol of the year. While in Spain the chorus will also entertain at the American Pavilion at the Expo in Seville. In all, five concerts have been scheduled as the chorus makes its way from Madrid to the Costa de Sol through Seville and back to Madrid.

Because their Barbershop style of singing is uniquely American, two years ago MVC was invited to represent the United States at these cultural events in Spain. The ladies wished upon a star, dug into their pockets and led by Peg Scott of Tewksbury started working to make this opportunity a reality.

The recession hit and some singers had to drop out; but when the dust settled 25 out of the 65 member group were planning to go. Karen Welzenbach of Chelmsford, director of MVC, put the 25 together ensuring all four vocal parts were properly represented and could present a balanced sound to their audience.

A musical package was put together by Norma Murray of Westford, associate director and head of MVC's music committee, and Gail Benson of Burlington who is a bilingual teacher for the Lawrence school system taught a Spanish folk song as the rehearsals began.

This is the third European dream to be realized as MVC cooperates with the International Sweet Adeline Organization and the male counterpart, SPEBSQA,

That time of year

Bottle Rockets are public menace

During the summer after her sophomore year at an Alabama high school, 15-year-old Jennifer was blinded in one eye by a bottle rocket. "I thought since I was 20 feet away from where my friends were shooting off bottle rockets, there wouldn't be any problem," Jennifer said. Before she knew it, one of the bottle rockets veered off course, striking her left eye.

Cases like Jennifer's are not unusual. Every year, more than 1,600 Americans are treated in emergency rooms for fireworks-related eye injuries. A stray bottle rocket is the culprit 83 percent of the time, according to a study by the United States Eye Injury Registry (USEIR).

Nine out of 10 victims of bottle rocket injuries are by-standers, the study found; more than half are under the age of 16. Similar tragedies occur every year:

•Dominic, a 15-year-old Alabamian, was "playing war" with some friends when he was struck by a bottle rocket. The rocket exploded, disfiguring his face and destroying his left eye.

"A bottle rocket looks innocent, but it's really a miniature unguided missile with an explosive tip" said ophthalmologist V. Al Pakalnis, MD, president of the USEIR.

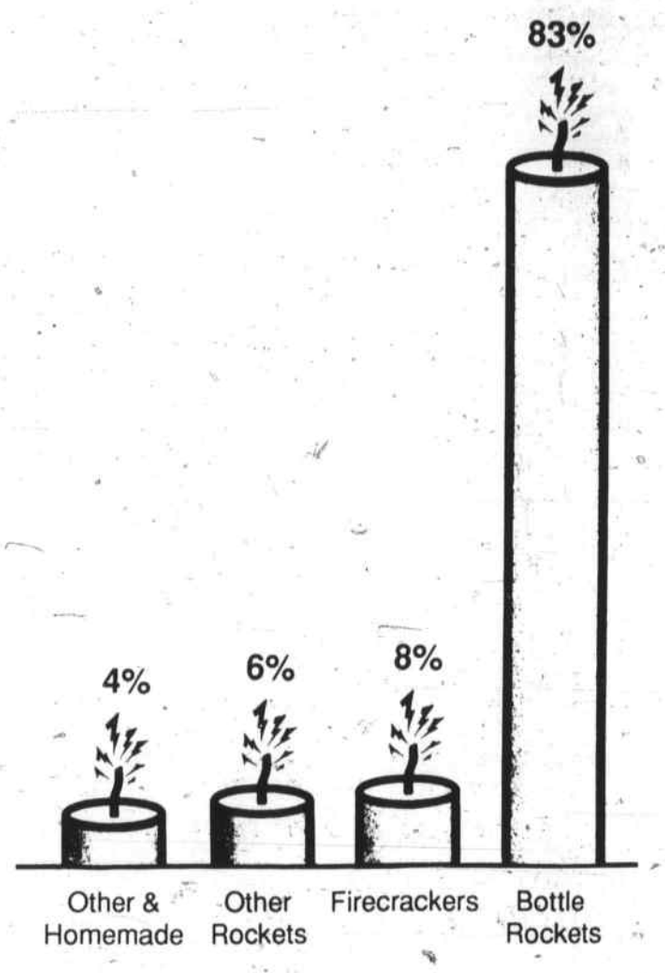

Bottle rocket injuries are frequently serious. All of the enucleations (eye removals) in the USEIR study were the result of bottle rocket injuries. Another study estimated that, during a five-year period, 1,322 Americans lost sight in one eye due to bottle rocket injuries.

Almost all fireworks eye injuries involve Class C devices (such as firecrackers, sparklers and bottle rockets) which are legal in 30 states. "States banning fireworks have fewer injuries," Dr. Pakalnis said, "but some people are still injured. They buy 'bootleg' fireworks or buy them in a neighboring state where they are legal."

Amateur use of fireworks can also be deadly. In 1985, 11 people died from fireworks injuries and 15 others died in fireworks-related fires. Fireworks sparked approximately 51,600 fires in 1985, causing $36.4 million in property damage.

The American Academy of Ophthalmology recommends attending public fireworks displays, rather than shooting fireworks off at home.

IN CELEBRATION OF INDEPENDENCE DAY, the finest Drum and Bugle Corps in the United States will compete at the third annual "Tournament of Drums," held this year in Beverly. The championship is scheduled for Sunday, July 5 from 4 to 8 p.m., rain or shine. Approximately 1,200 participants representing seven teams, ranging in age from 16 to 21, will compete in the championship, held at the Hurd Stadium, Essex Street/Route 22 in Beverly, from 4 to 8 p.m. All seats are reserved and tickets are $9 each or $5 for children under the age of 12. Pictured here is the 1990-1991 Tournament of Drums Champions, the Crossmen, of Philadelphia, PA.

Drum & bugle tournament in Beverly

In celebration of Independence Day, the finest Drum and Bugle Corps in the United States will compete at the third annual "Tournament of Drums," held this year in Beverly. The championship, scheduled for Sunday, July 5, from 4 to 8 p.m., stars last year's Drum Corps International (DCI) Champions, Star of Indiana from Bloomington, the only scheduled appearance of the troupe in the Boston area for this year. Approximately 1200 participants representing seven teams, and ranging in age from 16 to 21, will compete in the championship, held at the Hurd Stadium, Essex Street/Route 22 in Beverly.

Drum corps fans can also enjoy the rhythm of last year's DCI finalists, the Crossmen of Philadelphia, PA. and Skyryders of DeSoto, TX.

With repertoires including popular hits such as "Hello Dolly," "the Sting," and the theme music from the movie Star Wars, drum corps performance is not only competitive, but also serves as an art form and entertainment medium. Over 2,000 spectators from all over the country are expected to attend the event. Come feel the beat of the tournament, rain or shine. Plenty of food and beverages will be available from concessions. Alcoholic beverages are not allowed.

Redstone announces contest winners

Redstone Shopping Center merchants recently held a coloring contest in conjunction with Friends To Reopen Stone Zoo.

Dozens of children between the ages of 3 and 10 years old used their imaginations on the coloring page printed in the local newspapers and available from the merchants. They brought their artwork to the Friends Headquarters/Gift Shop located at Redstone to await judging.

All the participants and their families, plus the general public were invited to a ZOOFEST at the Giftshop where the prizes were awarded. Young and old alike enjoyed seeing and learning about some small live animals from Michelle's Menagerie. Face painting, animal cookies and "costumed" animals rounded out the celebration.

The winners are as follows: Ashley from North Andover; Myriam, Michelle, Eileen, all from Woburn; Amanda and Dane from Stoneham; Kelley from Wakefield; Emily and Danielle from Reading and Danielle from Salem, N.H.

The following merchants donated prizes: Athlete's Corner, Eastern Bank, Marshalls, Stoneham Cooperative Bank, CWT, ShoeTown, Parade of Shoes, Brigham's and Kentucky Fried Chicken.

About the Towns

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

"About The Towns" covers recent events in the 13-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper for up-to-date information about your city or town. We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About The Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

READING - "A Touch of Class," Reading's Summer Concert Series, begins - fittingly enough - at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in Memorial Park with Bob Bachelder and the Totem Pole Orchestra.

WOBURN - Following a legal opinion by City Solicitor Edward S. Robertson, the Woburn License Commission has announced that all public exhibitions, shows, etc. - whether they be for a day or much longer - will require a license which will require a public hearing and fee.

In the past, licensing of such events has been under the jurisdiction of the mayor; with special permits required in some instances for events like the annual Woburn Boys and Girls Club carnival.

It appears such events will now require both a special permit and license. The sale of alcoholic beverages at those times will continue to require a special license issued by the License Commission.

MALDEN - The Massachusetts Association of Directors of Health Care Volunteer Services has awarded its President's Team Award to the Malden Hospital for its Tender Loving Caregivers Program. Given for the first time by the MADHVS executive board, the award honors programs at local hospitals that have successfully involved collaborative efforts between volunteer and other departments.

NORTH READING - After weeks of controversy about design and location, the North Reading Selectmen have unanimously approved a new design for a proposed veterans' memorial on the common.

Offered by Gig Stephens and designed by Paul Colella, the new design includes four individual granite monuments - each approximately five feet long and 40 inches high on a pedestal base - to be added to the area around the World War I boulder in an arc pattern with a path allowing wheelchair access and ground level illumination.

The new and approved design will require a minimal amount of digging on the common; and a bronze plaque will bear the names of the town's 352 World War II veterans.

BURLINGTON - Middlesex Community College will remain "a presence" at Burlington's former Francis Wyman Junior High, even though the majority of Middlesex courses will move to a new campus in Bedford.

According to Dean of Planning Jim Mullen, the college will still run a full continuing education evening program in Burlington but will offer business courses in Bedford by fall. During the day, the Burlington building will be used on a "self-supporting basis," rented to companies and businesses for training classes and seminars; and the college may run a medical or legal secretarial program out of Burlington.

Middlesex is currently in the second year of a five-year lease which brings $300,000 a year to Burlington.

Would the school like to resettle in Reading which must need that money more? Sorry, that was inappropriate.

SENIOR CENTER - Initiated about 18 months ago by the Geriatric Support Committee, chaired by Associate Director of Nursing Marion Connors, The Malden Hospital's Tender Loving

4th of July in Wakefield

from S-1

Crooker explained that the Crusaders pay dues, and run monthly Bingo games.

Those members or their parents who work the games get a discount on the costs of the trips.

The group provides uniforms and instruments but the members must pay for the extras such as shoes and boots.

According to Crooker, the costs have come down a little as most of the groups do not include boots as part of the uniforms.

Independence Day Committee Co-Chairman James "Jake" Mackay said that he first heard of the possibility of bringing the Competition to Wakefield as he started to search for bands and drum corps that could be brought to Wakefield for the return of the Fourth of July parade after a one-year absence.

Drum Corps East Director Tony DiCarlo asked if Wakefield could be used as a competition site as another location had suffered financial difficulties and had to stop running the competitions.

MacKay notes that the Competition is separate from the Parade and that the only connection is that the bands come her to compete and will march at the same time.

DiCarlo has to set up tours for groups like the Skyriders and Drum Corps East runs competitions from Atlanta to Montreal.

Crooker explained that Drum Corps East is an affiliate of Drum Corps International, which has been in existence for the past 20-years. East has been in existence for eight to ten of those years.

As a celebration of the Internatios 20-years, a special competition will be held in Madison, Wisconsin from August 10 to 15. Over 40 corps are expected to compete at the start with 12 units going into the finals.

For those people who will not get enough of the high stepping precision drills, and the clear sound of the brass and drums that will appear in the parade, they can get a ticket for the Competition for $10.

The tickets are reserved seating, and can be ordered in advance by calling (617) 245-0961 or purchasing the tickets at Landrigan Field. The box office will be open at 9 a.m., on July 4.

About the Towns

from S-3

Caregivers Program is designed to meet the socialization needs of geriatric patients. The Geriatric Support Committee includes representatives from rehab', social, nutritional, and volunteer services.

Planned and run by volunteers from volunteer services headed by Charlotte Klaubert, organized tender loving caregiving is available for two hours twice a week for patients from 60 to 90-something. The multi-disciplinary approach offers such activities as simple games, music, bingo, and reminiscing.

The award-winning program's goal is to reach beyond the clinical needs of patients to bring them pleasure, companionship, a change in scenery, and the attention of volunteers who shower them with care and attention.

—Melrose students are bringing home the gold - and the green.

Members of the Melrose Middle School state champion Odyssey of the Mind team are Kenny Reid, Joey Higgins, Richard Sherman, Karen Burns, David Wasdyke, Annie Mackie, and John Beck; all coached by Roy Wasdyke.

Melrose Middle School student Jeff DelRossi won the Melrose Elks Drug Awareness Essay Contest for grades six and seven and student Scott Kulakowski is a finalist in Boston Celtic Robert Parrish's Mini-Camp Essay Contest.

Melrose High students won the "Environmental Games" contest sponsored by the Bay State Newspaper Company and Meadow Glen Mall in Medford - and earned for their school the grand prize of $5,000.

—Last fall, Woburn students were given extra credit toward their first quarter English grades if they read certain books during the previous summer.

This summer, Woburn Assistant Superintendent of Curriculum Louise Nolan proposed a reading plan with three options, and culminating with teachers' assigning book reports the first week of classes to make sure the reading has been done.

The first option requires that middle and high school students read one of the following during the summer: "Johnny Tremain," grade six; "Across Five Aprils" or "Treasure Island," grade seven; "War of the Worlds" or "The Outsiders," grade eight; "Great Expectations" or "Incredible Journey," grade nine; "Oliver Twist," "The Yearling" or "The First Men on the Moon," grade 10; "Red Badge of Courage," "White Fang" or "Call of the Wild," grade 11; "A Farewell to Arms" or "Hiroshima," grade 12.

A second option gives students the choice of which books, from a substantial list, to read, including those by contemporary authors and by female authors with women as main characters.

The English departments involved suggest high school students read three books; middle school students, two.

A third option, "strongly recommended" by middle school English teachers calls for students to read at least 20 pages a week and prepare a short written account of the material read.

Available also is a list of elementary level books prepared for each grade by teachers within the system.

According to the Woburn edition of the Daily Times Chronicle School Committee members all agreed with the summer reading idea "in principle," but asked that the list of books be approved before the plan is implemented.

—The Tewksbury Citizens' Scholarship Foundation offered "A Proud Town" scholarship of $200 to a Tewksbury resident who is a registered voter and has completed the sophomore year of a political science, fire science or public administration major; or to a town employee enrolled in any undergraduate or graduate degree program in the above categories.

The scholarship is awarded on grade-point average with special consideration given to the applicant's involvement in Town of Tewksbury community projects.

—Reading Parker Middle School eighth grader Matthew Pothier has placed second in the nation in the junior division of the National History Day Contest.

His individual media presentation - "a WOW performance," according to Reading High teacher Bruce Appleby - on "Changing Tracks: Railroads and Their Effect on Residential Patterns" was composed of a video on railroads in which he focused attention on Reading and the Reading RR.

—Members of Wilmington's Woburn St. School community recently planned a full week of activities honoring Principal Delores Silva upon her retirement.

One morning, she arrived to find the whole school waiting outside to greet her. And on "hats off to Mrs. Silva" day, everyone doffed a hat in her honor.

EMHS SEEKS HUMAN RIGHTS VOLUNTEERS

Eastern Middlesex Human Services (EMHS) is looking for a few concerned, interested members of the community to serve as volunteers on the Human Rights Committee which insures the protection of the rights of individuals with mental retardation within the Agencies programs and services.

The role of a Human Rights Committee member requires no special training or experience, except a sincere desire to help people, common sense and the belief that all human beings deserve respect, are entitled to their dignity and have the right to quality of life.

For most of this century, developmentally disabled people lived in isolated and often dismal institutions, cut off from the world around them. In the last two decades, the quality of life for developmentally disabled persons and their families has improved due to the creation of more community programs and improved services.

The Human Rights Committee aims for two basic goals. The first is to establish a sense of accountability with regard to the rights of consumers. The second role of the committee is to provide a fresh perspective in a creative, positive way by offering suggestions on how the program might better accomplish its goals.

The committee meets in Wakefield, on Tuesday evenings from 6 to 7:30 p.m. once during each six week period for a total of eight meetings. Anyone who has the desire and capacity to commit 12 hours a year to assist the mentally disabled please call John Cuetara at EMHS, 246-2003 for more information.

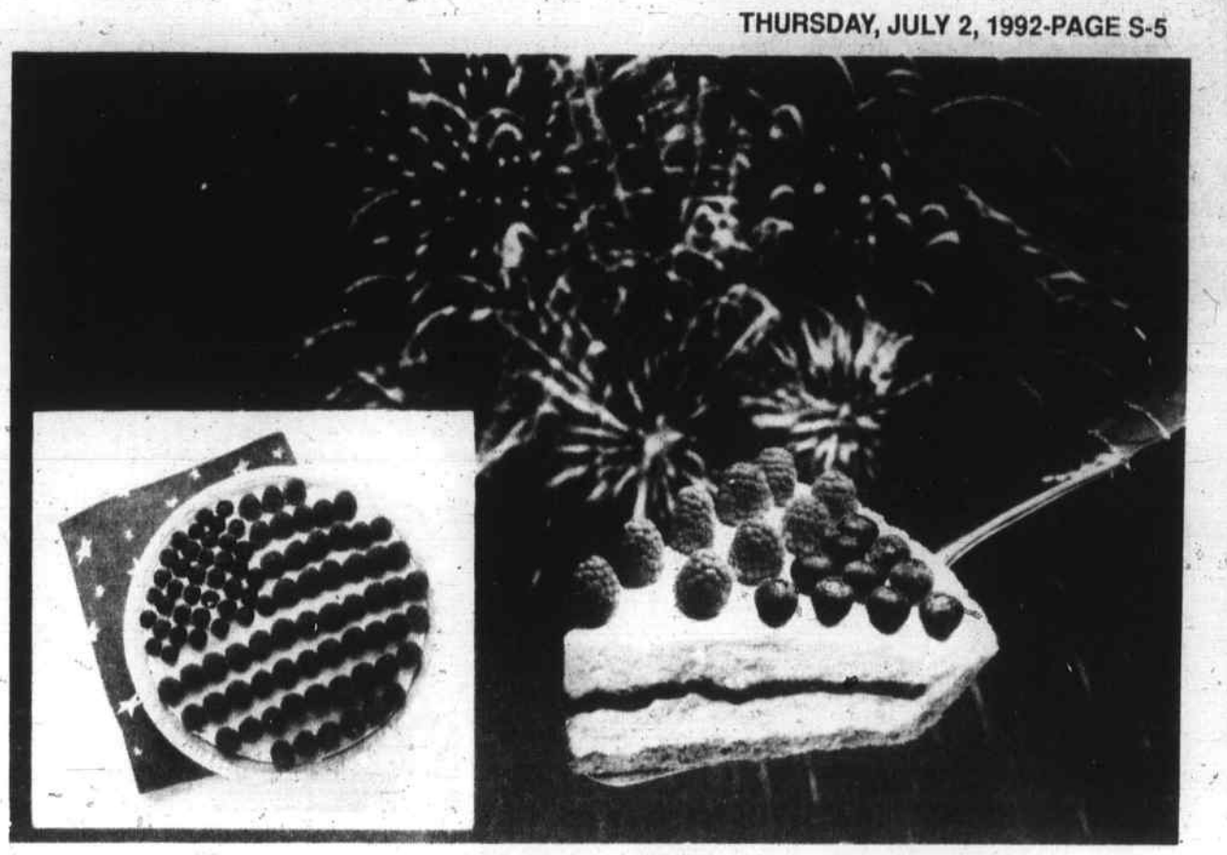

COMMUNITY BLOOD DRIVE IN WOBURN

When planning to do things this summer, please schedule an appointment to donate blood at the Days Inn, which has scheduled a Community Blood Drive for Monday, July 6th from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Donations are important year round, but especially during the summer months when many donors go on vacation.

"Unfortunately, the need for blood takes no vacation," states Deborah Driskell, Spokesperson for the American Red Cross Blood Services - Northeast Region. Traditionally, the blood supply declines during the summer because many donors are away.

For those who have considered becoming a blood donor, the summer would be a great time to start. If you are in good health, 18 years of age or older (17 years old with a signed American Red Cross Parental/Guardian Consent Form), weight at least 105 pounds, and have no history of hepatitis, you may be eligible to donate blood.

Sign-up today for an appointment to donate at the Day's Inn on Monday, July 6th from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. For more information or an appointment to donate, call 1-800-258-0025.

Stars and Stripes Pie Looks Great

Light up the sky! Ring up the flag! Get ready for a spectacular Fourth of July with a wonderful day of outdoor foods and a red, white and blue dessert that will set off a few fireworks of its own. "Stars 'n' Stripes" pie looks great but is so simple the kids really could do it. Make the base of the pie early in the week, freeze and then garnish just before serving with this patriotic look created with blueberries and raspberries.

"STARS 'N' STRIPES" PIE

1 Keebler Ready-Crust Graham Cracker pie crust (6 oz.)
3 pints vanilla ice cream, softened
6 oz. raspberry or strawberry preserves
1/2 pint fresh blueberries
1/2 pint fresh raspberries

To Make: Spoon half of softened ice cream into Keebler Ready-Crust pie crust and spread flat on the middle and slightly up the side of the curst. Gently spoon preserves onto ice cream and spread flat. Working from the edge to the center, spread remainder of ice cream on top of preserves. Freeze pie at least three hours.

Just before serving, remove pie from freezer and garnish with fresh fruit in flag design as shown. For best results, keep raspberry tips pointing up and serve immediately after garnishing. Note: Pie may be garnished in advance and frozen if you prefer.

Summer School in Wilmington

The Wilmington Public Schools will again offer summer courses for both make-up credit and enrichment. A full range of enrichment and remedial courses will be available for grades 6-12 at the North Intermediate School, Salem Road (Rte. T25) Wilmington.

It is not the intent of the summer session to supplement or replace the requirements of a full year's course, but to allow a student who has had difficulty during the year, to gain credit towards promotion or graduation and provide others with an enriching experience.

To take a course for credit requires approval of the student's principal and/or guidance counselor. Wilmington Summer School will forward grades to each student's school. A grade of 60 or better is required to pass the summer session, however students from other towns may have different requirements and should consult with their principal or counselor to determine what is required.

All classes begin on Monday July 6th and end Thursday, August 6th. There will be two sessions; Session I 7:45 to 9:30 and Session II 9:50 to 11:30. Please call 694-6050 for a registration form and complete course description. Course tuition for remedial/credit is $100.00 per course. Two week enrichment courses and SAT Review will be $50.00 each and a $10.00 registration fee. Registration forms are available in the guidance offices of all Wilmington Schools. Call 1-508-694-6041 for more information.

AUTO MART TO S-11

Short Takes

From S-14

Patriot Games is the lacklúster sequel to "Hunt for Red October," with Harrison Ford playing the role originated by Alec Baldwin. Harrison, now retired, steps into his old job at the CIA when his family is targeted by a rogue IRA terrorist. An outrageously implausible plot and two-dimensional characters make for a thriller that is more tepid than taut. This summer "Blockbuster" is more likely to produce a yawn than keep you on the edge of your seat. Rated R. **.

Sister Act stars Whoopi Goldberg as a second-rate lounge singer forced to hide out in a convent after witnessing her gangster boyfriend plug a flunky. Maggie Smith is the indomitable Mother Superior with a calming effect on Goldberg, who in turns drags the convent into the 20th century. Upbeat and oodles of fun, this movie is worth seeing just for the gospel versions of Motown hits. Rated PG. 1/2

Night on Earth is Jim Jarmusch's five-part story of cab rides in different cities around the world. Some are funny, some thoughtful, but there are too many and none offer as much insight into human nature as found in his last films. As the writer/director didn't really have enough to say here, he could have said it in less time. Rated R. **

Encino Man is a silly, pandering film about two California teens who find a caveman in, or rather under, their backyard. The plot is predictable and sorely lacking in humor, but Pauly Shore, of MTV fame, does a great turn as a spacey, pacifist teen. Rated PG. **

Alien 3 is supposed to be a scary movie, but someone forgot to tell director David Ancher, who thought he was making an art movie. Atmospheric smoke and dark, dreary settings just are not frightening. Ditto for the alien, who looks like a guy in a rubber suit. There is a fair amount of gore, but long stretches of this flick are simply boring. Even Sigourney Weaver seems tired of the whole thing. Rated R. * 1/2

Far and Away tells the tale of two Irish immigrants and their adventures in America, right up to the Oklahoma land race in 1893. Director Ron Howard tried to make an epic out of a skimpy story, resulting in a lot of eye candy but very little meat. Tom Cruise and Nicole Kidman are likable and the visuals are stunning, but the overlong plot is less than captivating. Rated PG-13.  1/2

The Playboys features Robin Wright as a single mother in a backwater Irish town in the 1950's who sees travelling actor Alden Quinn as a way out of her repressive community. Albert Finney is the local cop who can barely control his rage or his desire for Wright. The film masterfully captures the oppression doled out by the Church and the cunning hypocracy used by people to survive. The plot has a few loose ends, but otherwise it entertains on several levels. Rated PG-13.  1/2

Lethal Weapon 3 is a violent and unconvincing action pic reuniting Mel Gibson and Danny Glover as two mismatched LA police detectives. Their banter is forced and the plot, involving an ex-cop gone bad, is stale. The only refreshing bit in this film is an off-beat love scene involving Gibson and a fellow detective (Rene Russo). Except for the opening explosion, this film is a dud. Rated R. * 1/2

Howard's End weaves the emotional story of two Edwardian families, one unbending and proper, the other free spirited and open. The two families are joined through marriage, resulting in some surprising changes for all parties. The film belongs to Emma Thompson as a strong, intelligent woman who brings the families together and then keeps them going. Rated PG. ****

The Player is director Robert Altman's ultimate skewering of Hollywood. Tim Robbins is a paranoid studio exec who manages to get away with murder as he tries to hold onto his job. Wicked and dark and very funny, this flick both pays tribute and lambastes Hollywood and our preoccupation with actors-as-gods. More than 60 stars show up to make fun of their biz and provide glitter for this amazing, entertaining film. Rated R. ****

Tips On Swimming Pool Safety:

Recreational Diving Do's and Don'ts

Dive into summer—but do it safely, say the experts at the National Swimming Pool Safety Committee (NSPSC).

Safe diving habits can prevent accidents which occur when swimmers hit the bottom of a pool, resulting in severe spinal cord injury and paralysis. As part of its "Operation Water Watch" program, the safety experts at the NSPSC offer these do's and don'ts for divers and parents of children who may dive:

Do's

• Do know the depth of the water is sufficient for your dive. Many recreational swimmers are seriously injured each year as a result of diving into shallow areas of lakes, ponds, streams or swimming pools.

• Do plan your dive path. Make sure there are at least 25 feet of clear water ahead.

• Do be sure there are no submerged or floating obstacles, such as other swimmers, rocks, tree branches, etc.

• Do remember to steer your body upwards as you dive. Keep your head up and your arms extended over your head. Steer up with your hands once you enter the water.

• Do keep your dives simple.

• Do take diving lessons from a qualified instructor.

Look before you leap—and dive safely.

Don'ts

• Don't dive into the shallow end of a pool or into shallow water.

• Don't dive into an above ground pool.

• Don't drink and dive. Statistically, more than 50 percent of all diving accidents involve alcohol.

• Don't attempt any fancy or competitive-style dives in residential pools.

• Don't try to dive through an inner tube or other pool toy.

• Don't push or throw anyone into the water.

• Don't dive off the side of a diving board, slide or any other pool equipment.

• Don't slide head first down a pool slide.

• Don't take a running dive.

• Don't forget to be careful, and have fun!

Learning how to dive properly is as important as learning how to swim. For proper diving instruction, contact the local YMCA, Red Cross or area schools. For free diving safety brochures, call 1-800-323-3996.

The United States has about 5,000 state parks and 48 national parks.

YOUR PRESCRIPTION FOR SUCCESS

NRx® JOB FAIR
At Our Pharmacy
500 Research Drive*
Wilmington, MA
Wednesday, July 1, 1992
From 5:00-10:00 P.M.

National Rx Services has arrived in Massachusetts. A division of Medco Containment Services, Inc., we are the nation's leading provider of prescription drug benefit programs. We currently have opportunities available at our new mail service pharmacy in Wilmington. If you are looking for a rewarding career with an outstanding company, come see what we have to offer.

We have full and part-time opportunities available:

Staff Pharmacists
Our environment will allow you to focus on the professional practice of pharmacy. You will engage in various tasks ranging from traditional dispensing to clinical pharmacy, such as prospective drug utilization review and physician education. Our large prescription volume will enable you to stay abreast of the latest changes in medications and therapies, while utilizing computers and technology to supplement, not replace your professional judgement. Our emphasis on quality and continuous improvement will give you the opportunity to expand your knowledge and implement your ideas.

Pharmacy Technicians
You will assist pharmacists in filling and coding prescriptions with the use of a CRT. Previous experience as a pharmacy technician is required.

Support Specialists
You will perform mail opening, sorting, order routing and packaging duties. Training provided. No previous experience required.

Customer Service Representatives
You will handle a high volume of incoming customer telephone calls and respond to general inquiries using a computer terminal to access customer records. Must have related experience and excellent communication skills. Knowledge of Portuguese or Spanish is a plus.

Data Entry Operators
You will be entering patient and prescription information into our computer system. Must have previous data entry experience.

Security Officer-Part-Time Only
Responsibilities include interior building security and loss prevention. Previous security experience required.

If unable to attend our Job Fair, please send your resume or write to Staffing Manager, National Rx Services, Inc., 500 Research Drive, Wilmington, MA 01887.

*Directions: From I-93, take Exit 41. Go North on Rte. 125 to blinking yellow light. Take left onto Ballardvale St. Go approx. 1 mile. Take right at Wilmington Technology Park sign. Follow Research Drive to top of hill. Our pharmacy is on the right side. Entrance is in center of building.

"Unlawful Entry" and Short Takes

by Rochelle Flynn

"Unlawful Entry" Starring Kurt Russell, Ray Liotta, Madeleine Stowe. Directed by Jonathan Kaplan. Produced by Charles Gordon. Screenplay by Lewis Colick. Rated R.

Karen and Michael Carr seem to have everything. He's a successful developer, she's a contented teacher. They are gorgeous. Their home is gorgeous. Even their cat is gorgeous. But this is Hollywood, so something is bound to go wrong.

Enter Officer Pete Davis, a Los Angeles policeman who falls into their lives after the Carr's home is burglarized and the perpetrator holds a knife to Karen's beautiful throat. The criminal quickly gets away, but the Carr's have a much tougher time shaking off Officer Pete. He's decided Karen (Madeleine Stowe) would really be much happier with him and that Michael (Kurt Russell) should be out of the picture all together.

Admittedly, it's an interesting set-up. There is very little recourse one can take to get rid of a maniacal cop. After all, a cop is protected by the system. That he is charming, handsome, and smart enough to make that system work for him, and not you, makes the concept all the scarier. And Ray Liotta is truly menacing as the officer whose veneer of sanity barely masks the ugly brew boiling in his psyche.

However, there are a few rough patches on the road from idea to execution, and all of them have to do with the plot. It is vaguely implied that Pete Davis wants the stuff, and the wife, that Michael has because Pete is an underpaid and overworked victim of the growing class system in this country. But we don't know anything about the cop's background. Not how he lives or what might have driven him over the edge. Had this class disparity been made more obvious, it would have enhanced the film's dimensions intellectually. Because we never get to know much about Liotta's character, he becomes just another cinematic psycho, even if his performance is boffo.

Then there is Stowe's role. At first her character is intrigued by this attentive, lonely man. Her husband, after all, is always tied up with his work. But by the time Officer Davis' inner demons have sprouted horns, she should have had a clue. And when he finally comes after her, this intelligent woman can't get away, although every member of the audience can easily spot a couple of chances where she could have tried.

And so Karen Carr becomes yet another of Hollywood's Stupid Women. You know her. She's the kind who cowers and can't take care of herself or who crawls away and hides when she could help. Shame on writer Lewis Colick for adding to the myth that women don't fight back.

As for Russell, he is just as compelling as Liotta. As the modern equivalent of Cassandra he keeps telling people the truth - that a lunatic cop is trying to ruin his life. But no one wants to hear it. Russell conveys this message with maddening, believable urgency.

As the movie unfolds, its apparent that "Unlawful Entry" is really just a classy horror flick with pretensions of grandeur. Director Jonathan Kaplan ("The Accused") keeps the pacing taut and knows what to do with all those old "monster in the house" tricks. We've seen them before, but they still work. There really are some palpable thrills in this picture, even if the plot was bused in from a made-for-TV movie.

Monster in a Box is Spalding Gray's hilarious, and personal, tale of avoidance as her procrastinated the completion of his novel "Impossible Vacation" for six years. His accounts of a Russian Film Festival, a fact finding mission to Nicaragua and interviews with UFO abductees are both funny and poignant. Gray lets us into his psyche and tells us what he knows of human nature. Rated PG-13. ****

Batman Returns is a huge improvement over director Tim Burton's last comic book caper. Gotham City is done up in Fascist architecture, Michael Keaton's Batman and Michelle Pfeiffer's Catwoman suffer from split personalities and The Penguin (Danny DeVito) just needs a hug. The plot is meandering and Christopher Walken's energy vampire just sort of drops out of sight, but not before we've had a real Bat treat. Rated PG-13.  1/2

Housesitter is an update of the kind of screwball comedy where nothing much has to make sense, as long as it's funny. Goldie Hawn plays a consummate liar who pushes her way into Steve Martin's lonely life. Hawn just moves into Martin's empty house, the one he built for Dana Delany before she dumped him. Hawn then tells everyone, including Martin's folks, that they are married. You can connect the dots from there. This is fun, frothy, and lighter than air. Rated PG.  1/2

Family of 15 faces eviction

by Brad Parmenter

There is a bang at the front door. Several children are preceded by happy laughter. One of the kids has just received her new card from Wilmington Memorial Library. They have taken out numerous books. Their mother follows behind telling them not to eat too many of the cookies she just bought. This scene has probably been played out many times before. On July 15 it may never be done the same way again.

Michael Luce and his wife Sandra have until July 15 before they and 12 children and one grandchild are asked to leave their home in accordance with a bank forclosure.

On that day Michael, Sandra and all the children under the age of eighteen will be eligible to enter a shelter. They will have to leave Wilmington where they have lived for 12 years. "The town of Wilmington can't help us; they don't have an emergency shelter, " Luce explains. Luce objects to the thought of a shelter to begin with. "If we move into a shelter that means we have no place to live and the kids are in jeopardy. " Luce objects to having to "cast away" his kids over 18. "It's kind of cruel. ... It's like animals; once you reach a certain age you're not one of them anymore."

When the Luces started their life in Wilmington, both Michael and Sandra were working Complications with the birth of their last two children forced Sandra to give up her job. The Luces also had to take a second mortgage because their first one was held by a credit union that went under. Even with his job as an emergency generator technician, Luce was unable to keep up payments on the house.

In addition to losing their house, the Luces also stand to lose one or more of their children due to health reasons. Department of Youth Services is considering taking over the care of their 10-year-old daughter, Jessica, who is diabetic. Luce worries how this will effect Jessica. "She will think we let this happen. We wouldn't let kids pick on her, so why did we let this happen?"

Luce always wanted a house. When he was a child his father, who always rented homes, couldn't install the swingset he had bought for his son on rented property. "That always stuck in my mind," said Luce. "I wanted to give them (kids) something they could say was their house." Luce says he's often asked why he chose to have so many kids. He's heard it so many times he says he now jokes, "so they would throw me out of planned parenthood." He says, however, that the real reason has to do with his love for his wife. "A doctor once told her she couldn't have children. When she could, we wanted a lot."

Sandra is also frustrated. She might be taken from some of her children by people who, "aren't giving that any thought."

"We aren't looking for freebees," said Sandra. They are looking for help from other people. "There has to be someone who has a house to lease or rent, said Luce. "There has to be someone."

HUD grants Meegan conditional waiver on conflct of interest

by Arlene Surprenant

A good part of the Wilmington Housing Authority's problems were resolved last week when member Al Meegan was granted a conditional waiver from the regional office of HUD (Housing and Urban Development). The waiver excuses Meegan from the conflict of interest provision of the Consolidated Annual Contribution Contract between HUD and the housing authority. In addition, back checks owed Meegan for his Section Eight rental home were signed by WHA members Tom Siracusa and Dan Gillis last week and released to the landlord in order to stop eviction proceedings against Meegan's tenant.

In the July 1 letter to Chairman Siracusa, HUD's Regional Administrator John Mastropietro said, because Excutive Director Ella Belmore had refused to release the back checks and the board was unable to resolve the conflict situation, HUD had decided to grant the waiver conditional on the following terms: Meegan may not vote on any issue related to the Section Eight contract; each time a new member is elected, the board will have to vote on transfering the administration of the rental home to another agency; and the waiver will remain in effect only until the current tenant vacates the unit or the board votes to eliminate the conflict by transfering the administration of the unit to another authority.

In reviewing the facts of the ongoing deadlock situation, the administrator pointed out that HUD had twice notified the authority that withholding the rental checks was not an "appropriate response" to the matter. He went on to say that "the executive director has no basis for a concern of legal liability" and her continued refusal to make the payments violates HUD regulations and would subject the authority to a civil action by the landlord and third party action by the tenant.

Belmore had maintained in the past that she could be held liable if she released the checks while Meegan was in a conflict of interest situation. As a result of Belmore's stand and the inability of the board to agree to transfer the Section Eight Certificate, Meegan began eviction proceedings against his tenant to remove the conflict. The tenant, in turn, retained a lawyer and is threatening legal action against the authority. The whole issue was brought to the attention of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen two weeks ago when it was learned an investigation might be conducted of potential discriminatory practises in local housing if the issue wasn't resolved soon.

On Monday, Siracusa confirmed that Meegan is now cleared of his conflict of interest situation. The chairman said he went to the housing authority office on Thursday and was given a note from Belmore requesting that he sign the rental assistance payments for May and June. Siracusa said both he and Gillis signed the checks and they were mailed to Meegan, who was on vacation at the time.

Planning board approves Inwood Office Park plan

by Arlene Surprenant

It took several years and a lengthy negotiation process, but proponents of the Inwood Office Park in Woburn finally succeeded in gaining planning board approval for their proposed development.

At their meeting Tuesday night, Wilmington planners unanimously approved the site plan showing access from West Street to the park. The approval came with 11 conditions, most designed to protect the town from a heavy traffic burden.

"It's been a long, difficult process for everybody," said George Bachrach, attorney for the applicant TCW Land Fund I. He referred to months of negotiations with the town to make the traffic impact palatable to Wilmington as "tough but reasonable discussions."

Though all four office buildings will be located in Woburn, plans call for traffic to enter and exit the park from West Street in Wilmington. Local officials long feared the impact, not only on West Street, but on the Rt.129/ West Street intersection by I-93 as well. As a result, the town is supporting an Industriplex Interchange it hopes will be built to funnel some of the traffic directly onto I-93.

At Tuesday's meeting, traffic consultant Bruce Campbell presented the site plan designed by Hayes Engineering in Wakefield. Campbell told the board the plan was "pretty straightforward" and shows the driveway entrance splitting by the towers in the power easement and entering the office park. The plan also showed a proposed bridging of wetlands and concrete barriers on either side of the power lines.

Planners reviewed all 11 conditions that were negotiated with the proponents. Included in the conditions was a promise by the applicant to make "a good faith effort" to expedite engineering and approvals for the Massachusetts Highway Department (MHD) project for the Rt.129/West Street intersection and to support such improvements as traffic signals at the intersection and a left hand turn lane at the site drive intersection with West Street for vehicles coming from Reading. The conditions also require TCW to cooperate with MHD to secure eastern break-in access for the Industriplex Interchange and to build a connector road through the site to West Street. Condition 10 states that the applicant concurs with Woburn's offer to contribute an annual payment not to exceed 10 percent of the taxes paid on the property each year to Wilmington for municipal services. TCW also concurs that any agreements between both parties will be covenants running with the land and would be binding on TCW's successors.

The only neighbor in attendance at the meeting was John Forrest, who owns the gas station at the corner of West Street and Rt.129. He asked what would happen if the neighbors didn't approve the plan. Board Chairman Dick Longo replied neighbors may make their feelings known at a future public hearing to be held by the board of selectmen on the traffic improvements in that area. Longo added his board was primarily interested in the site plan review.

Arson ruled in fire in vacant building

Fire swept through an abandoned building on West Street early Thursday morning, causing the building inspector to condemn the building and order its demolition.

Labeled as definitely arson by Deputy Fire Chief Dan Stewart, the fire was reported at 4:30 a.m. Firefighters responded and found the middle and rear of the building engulfed in flames.

Firefighter Bob Vassallo went to the rear, and was able to knock down the flames. A team then went inside and tackled the burning interior, bringing the fire under control. Recall was not until 8 a.m.

The former office building is owned by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, having been taken by eminent domain for improvements to West Street. The last tenant was the state Dept. of Youth Services.

Stewart said the fire had two points of origin in the building, but that a fire in the front room had burned itself out. The damage came from a fire set in the rear.

The fire left the building structurally unsound, with demolition ordered.

Stewart said that the building had recently been used as a hangout by persons unknown.

An abandoned fuel tank was also found dumped behind the building. Stewart said it was a 2000 to 3000 gallon underground tank. The tank is being investigated by the state Dept. of Environmental Protection as well as state and local police.

Flag stolen

Cosimo Nigrelli of Dorothy Avenuewas left with only a small flag, after a Fourth of July thief walked off with his new flag He was later given a new flag by the Amvets.

Flag thief hits on the Fourth

The booby prize for the lowest prank of the holiday weekend would probably go to a thief who visited Dorothy Avenue on Saturday night.

Cosimo Nigrelli, a native of Sicily, recently put up a flagpole in his yard. Ever since moving into the house on the Fourth of July, 1960, he had wanted a flagpole.

Cosimo dug the four-foot hole by hand, and put up the pole with some help from Bob Williams of Williams Sign.

He was oh so proud when he ran the flag up the hallyard on the Fourth of July.

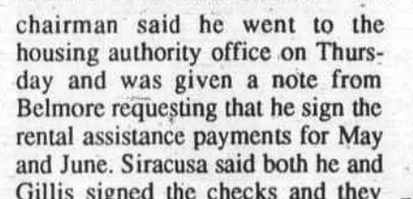

That evening, as he watched the celebrations on television, someone stole the flag.

The Amvets have donated a new flag for him to fly.
